

His Sons Answer Unknown Soldier's Heritage of Valor

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

Echoes of the last gunshot of the World War shuddered into sullen silence just 23 years ago this November 11 to usher in Armistice Day.

On that day, despite the millions of dead and maimed the war had cost, a world dream of perpetual peace blossomed in men's hearts. It was born of a futile hope that the war to end wars had been fought—and won.

Even in vanquished Germany that dream flowered strongly as her half-famished people counted the cost of the battle, paid and unpaid. Among the victor nations it was that yearning hope that set feet a-dancing, even the feet of those who mourned their war dead.

"In honored glory—known but to God."

That Armistice Day of doubly tragic memory to common men everywhere untroubled by vaulting ambitions saw an intoxicating vision of a world forever free of war's alarms. The star of peace was at its zenith, whatever the tongue in which men spoke or the land they called home.

On this Armistice Day—just 23 years later—the star is

Armistice Day

By GRANTLAND RICE.

I remember the day when the guns were still
And the battle flags unfurled.

I remember the silence—and the thrill—
Which caught the millions
by trench and hill
When peace came back to the world.

From the snow-swept north to the sun-dipped south,
With roses packing the cannon's mouth.

And that was a thousand years ago
When the troops came home again.

No red blood tinted the poppy's glow
As the gun gave way to the plow and hoe,
To the tractor, forge and pen.

"All wars are over," the legion said
As the rain-wet crosses cover the dead.

Yes, that was a thousand years or more
From a life that is far away,
As a mad world reels to the cannon's roar,
With a thousand fields knee deep in gore
Where the bombers hold their sway.

At Arlington, with its guarded gate, gone from the heavens. War-harried peoples again raise pleading arms vainly against a new and more brutal slaughter. Millions more of the flower of the youth of a dozen nations who were unborn or babes in arms that first Armistice Day lie dead now on the battlefields of Europe and of Asia, or huddle maimed and pain-racked bodies in hospital beds.

There is no peace. Instead the shadow of the sword, clutched in the ruthless and bloody hands of those sworn to cut their way to mastery, falls heavily over all lands and peoples. And still the grimy war chariots roll, still the rending air bombs and deadly torpedoes play havoc within ever widening conflict areas that all but circle the globe.

About the tombs of those who fell in the World War, whatever their nationality or the flag under which they died, orators have poured out succeeding Armistice Days tribute to that deep longing for assured peace that fills the hearts of humble men. Nowhere did it find more fitting expression

Cowboys Call in Police When Wild Steers Take to Pavement

Relying on their modern, two-way radio-equipped automobiles, members of the Atlanta police department last night were engaged in what they hope will be their "last roundup."

The police were pressed into service when a wild Brahman steer, after tossing two of the star performers at the rodeo, being given each night this week at Ponce de Leon park under auspices of the Young Matrons' Circle for the Tallulah Falls School, became disgusted with it all, and with tail hoisted high, climbed the steep bank in right field in high gear, and without slackening speed, lunged through the right-field fence.

Catching on rapidly, two other steers followed suit.

When last seen by performers and spectators, the trio were headed north along the railroad tracks, but residents in the vicinity of Parkway drive, Fourth, Sixth and Eighth streets, soon were furnishing police with clues to the missing steers, as the wild animals ruthlessly plunged through yards, shrubbery and fences.

A bevy of cowboys and cowgirls, mounted on ponies trained to chase the steers over the mesa and the turf of the western plains, gave chase, but they were handicapped when the ponies struck the smooth hard pavement of the streets in the northeast section.

Policemen participating in the chase expressed a willingness to search for the steers, but weren't quite sure what they'd do if they discovered one of them.

Parade of War Forces To Mark Armistice Here

Veterans, New Soldiers To March Side by Side Today.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Rumbling guns and marching men, primed and trained for battle, will mark today the 23d anniversary of the end of a war that was to make the world safe from wars forever.

With parades and speeches and martial music, Atlanta will join the rest of the nation in solemn Armistice Day ceremonies that look not back to glorious deeds performed, but to grim tasks ahead.

While American warships scour the seas with orders to shoot on sight, Americans at home look back on 23 peaceful years that stand revealed today as not years of peace at all, but merely a breathing space in which a determined enemy licked his wounds and found strength to fight again.

Thus men of the Legion, who fought the Hun, today will march with the youngsters who some day soon may have to fight the Hun's grim son, the Nazi.

Begins at 10 O'Clock.

The parade begins at 10 o'clock, starting at Peachtree and Baker and moving from there along Whitehall to Hunter, to Washington, to Courtland, and from there to the city auditorium, where, at 11 o'clock, the throng will hear the Armistice Day broadcast by President Roosevelt.

Leading the line of march will be the famed New York regiment, the "Fighting 69th," among the first American units to reach the front in World War I, now in training at Fort McClellan as the 165th Infantry Regiment.

Following in the parade will be the members of the Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans and various patriotic organizations.

Schools Remain Open.

Although many business houses and offices will be closed throughout the day, public schools of both city and county will be open with special ceremonies planned.

The program at the city auditorium will also feature an address by DeLacey Allen, of Albany, national vice commander of the American Legion.

An aerial escort will be formed by the training planes of the Naval Air Base here, and the Atlanta Air Patrol of the State Defense Corps.

Under pressure of defense orders, Atlanta industries and mills will operate on regular week-day schedules.

GIVEN FREE REIN—The Navy yesterday instructed Rear Admiral C. A. Blakely at San Diego to "take necessary steps" to carry work forward on naval defense projects tied up by a strike of building workers.

Mercury Here Again To Drop To Freezing

32 Low, 48 High Predicted; Forecaster Silent on Relief.

Freezing temperatures will strike Atlanta again early this morning, according to G. W. Mindling, chief of the Atlanta weather bureau.

His forecast of yesterday afternoon was partly cloudy with frost today, with a minimum temperature of 32 degrees and a high of 48 degrees, a return of the first freezing temperature of the season recorded Sunday morning.

Yesterday's lowest temperature was officially registered as 38 in the city, but it was 31 at the airport. The high for the day was 53 degrees.

The forecaster declined to commit himself as to when relief from the chill weather can be expected. Temperatures were uniformly low west of here yesterday, with lows of 33 degrees at Meridian, 35 at Montgomery, 31 at Birmingham and at 29 at Vicksburg.

The flurry of light snow that fell in Atlanta Saturday night between 9 and 10 o'clock was not the earliest of the season on record here, the weatherman said. Bureau records, he added, showed earlier falls of snow in numerous years, the latest being 1937, 1938 and 1939, when some snow fell in Atlanta in October.

Navy Threatens Use of Force in Strike on Coast

OPM Reports Workers Told To Return to Posts.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 10. The Navy said today it would use Marines, if necessary, to suppress an "open revolt against the United States government"—its designation of the strike of AFL building tradesmen on $35,000,000 in naval defense projects here.

The Navy reported that about 3,500 workers on 11 defense projects did not report to work this morning.

The international presidents of the eight unions involved in the walkout have sent orders to the local unions to return to work tomorrow, the Office of Production Management announced late today in Washington.

No Comm. t.

Union leaders here were not immediately available for comment, but members said that any return to work would not be before Wednesday because tomorrow was a labor holiday.

Naval officials said they had not been informed of the instructions from the union presidents.

Seven crafts of the building trades council are asking for a wage increase of $1 a day.

Failure to comply with the Navy's back-to-work ultimatum, prompted a statement from Rear Admiral Charles A. Blakely, 11th district commander, in which he described the strike as a revolt.

In Washington the Navy Department announced it had instructed Admiral Blakely to "take necessary steps to carry work forward."

Guards Ordered.

The announcement said the commandant had been instructed to request civilian authorities to maintain order and to have available Naval and Marine guards to protect government property and maintain order.

"The Navy will take full constituted authority to suppress this revolt," Admiral Blakely said.

"Labor leaders have refused to abide by their national organization's agreement with the Navy and they are now defying only one contractor—the United States government."

"The constitution of the United States grants to its citizens the right to free assembly, but that sacred document does not permit individuals to bludgeon the United States government. And, I fully intend to see that certain San Diego labor leaders do not bludgeon the United States Navy!"

F. D. R. JOINS UP—Franklin D. Roosevelt's name was placed on the rolls of the American Red Cross for another year yesterday and Miss Adelaide Whitehouse, wearing the military-like uniform of the volunteer services of which she is assistant director, pinned a Red Cross button on the presidential lapel. Most Red Cross units will begin annual roll calls today, while some, like Atlanta, hold membership drives at other times.

Britain Pledged Roosevelt Asks To War for U.S. Tax To Absorb If Japs Attack Buying Power

Declaration 'Within the Hour' Is Promised by Churchill.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(P)—In the midst of the Pacific crisis, Winston Churchill solemnly warned Japan today that if she went to war with the United States she would be engaged to the death by Britain as well within an hour of her decision.

Speaking at a time that could not have been more important in Japanese-American relations, since a special Japanese envoy is even now en route to Washington, the prime minister loosed without the least equivocation or qualification this historic admonition:

"... I should view with keen sorrow the opening of a conflict between Japan and the English-speaking world. The United States' time-honored interests in the Far East are well known. They are doing their utmost to find ways of preserving peace in the Pacific."

"Hazardous Adventure."

"I do not know whether their efforts will be successful, but should they fail I take this occasion to say—and it is my duty to say it—that should the United States become involved in war with Japan the British declaration will follow within the hour."

"Viewing such a somber scene as dispassionately as possible, it would seem a very hazardous adventure for the Japanese people to plunge quite needlessly into a world struggle in which they may well find themselves opposed in the Pacific to states whose populations comprise nearly three-quarters of the human race."

"If steel is the basic foundation of the Japanese empire, it will be shattered by the atomic bomb."

President Sees Additional Levies as Necessary To Block Inflation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(P)—President Roosevelt said tonight that "we must take immediate steps to absorb a large amount of purchasing power through additional taxes, and incidentally to pay cash for greater part of our defense production."

In an exchange of letters with Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, the chief executive added:

"We must remember that taxation is a necessary complement to price control legislation, because the continuing effectiveness of price control is largely dependent upon the restriction of the demand for goods."

Mr. Roosevelt said that if taxes are to be used to restrain inflation they should be directed mainly at that portion of the national income devoted to purchase of civilian goods, "and should be of a character that will not increase the cost of these goods."

"Inflation is in itself a most inequitable type of taxation," the President wrote.

"It grants no exemptions and recognizes no hardships—though a well-drafted tax bill can do both. It very much fear that unless we start within two or three months to withdraw through taxes a larger part of the current national income an even greater part may evaporate through inflation, and the upward spiral may gain such momentum that it will be difficult to regulate, despite all efforts through price control and similar measures."

Vote Is 9 to 2 Against CIO; Two Paths Left

Leader Refuses To Say
If He Will Call for Stoppage.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 10. (INS)—Army officers sent to Pittsburgh tonight were reported gathering blue prints of "captive mines" after the National Defense Mediation Board turned down demands of John L. Lewis.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—By a 9-to-2 vote, the Defense Mediation Board recommended against a union shop in the "captive" coal mines today.

With its decision, John L. Lewis was confronted with the question of abandoning, for the time being, this long-time objective of initiating a strike in which the full weight of the government might be expected to be thrown on the side of the steel companies which own the mines and use their fuel output in defense-vital steelmaking.

The chairman of the United Mine Workers (CIO) would not say what he might do, or make any comment on the board's recommendation. He declined to see reporters, but sent word he would have nothing to say before tomorrow.

Meeting Called.

It was later learned, however, that Lewis had called a meeting of the union's scale committee meeting here Friday. The committee would have the power to decide the policy in the matter.

Chairman William H. Davis disclosed that the only members of the board voting for the UMW's demand were the two CIO representatives—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the UMW.

The two AFL members went along with the four industry representatives and the three public members in opposing the union shop.

Truce To End.

The UMW struck October 22 for the union shop in the "captive" mines. After three days, the 53,000 miners went back to work under a truce expiring November 13 while the issue was placed before the Mediation Board.

Davis issued the following extract from the board's full recommendation:

"That the United Mine Workers of America and the operators involved in this dispute proceed immediately to sign the Appalachian agreement, which requires membership in the United Mine Workers as a condition of employment shall be inoperative, for the duration of the contract."

The Appalachian agreement is one negotiated by the UMW with commercial coal mines in the Appalachian area and covers wages and working conditions. It also provides for a union shop.

Thus, the Mediation Board's recommendation, if followed, would assure miners in the "captive" mines the same wages and working conditions as those in commercial mines.

The union shop, as defined in this case, requires that all miners join the union after a probationary period of employment.

The dispute was referred to the

LEO ON AUCTION BLOCK—W. D. Weaver, of 230 Moreland avenue, has put young Felis Leo, age four months, up for sale. Weaver had his own ideas about establishing a home-made "zoo" in his back yard, but Felis Jr. wouldn't co-operate and now he's trying to find another home for the pretty little playful "kitten."

Disillusioned Amateur Trainer Will Sell Young Lion Cheap

By PAUL JONES.

Anybody want a he-lion? That was the pleading query put to Atlanta at large by a disillusioned Atlanta lion fancier, W. D. Weaver, yesterday.

About a week ago Weaver bought the lion cub from a friend to start himself a homemade "jungle" right in his own back yard.

Weaver had been to the circus and had seen Clyde Beatty and other wild animal trainers put the wild beasts through their paces. He had seen Tarzan come to grips with the jungle beasts.

And all of this gave him a thrill.

He wanted to become an animal trainer himself and here was his one opportunity to make his dream come true.

He had visions of building a pen in the back yard and he was going to get into it with Felis Leo. He would fire a gun and crack a whip, just like circus performers do, and he would make his own lion do tricks.

But alas, Weaver is a disillusioned man. Lions ain't what he thought they were.

An affectionate nibble by brother Felis Leo brought on the disillusionment. The cat's teeth bit through the palm of Weaver's hand.

Now he has scrapped his plans for a residential "zoo". He wants to sell the "little kitty", only four months old, to anyone who will buy for a nominal sum.

Anyone who has his own ideas (or illusions) about establishing a back-yard jungle may contact Weaver at his home, 230 Moreland avenue.

Fightin' 69th Rolls Into Atlanta for Armistice Parade

By HAROLD MARTIN.

That proud and truculent regiment, New York's Fighting 69th, which earned its name battling our southern forbears in the War Between the States, and lived up proudly to its reputation throughout World War I, rolled into town last night to lead the Armistice parade today.

Through predominantly Irish and still full of O'Reilly's, O'Toole's, and O'Flynn's, the proud old regiment now retains only a Gaelic flavor. Its ranks are full of the Hebrew faith, and of dark-eyed, dark-haired young men whose hearts leap up when they behold a plate of spaghetti, but remain unmoved by Irish stew.

In fact, until recently, the roll of the regiment carried the names of 17 Chinese, most of whom now have been returned to private life through the law which released men 28 or older. There was some feeling that this heavy concentration of Orientals was in the nature of a whimsical jest played on the proud Irishmen by someone higher up. But the Irish, as usual, had the last laugh. For among the Chinese contingent it seemed there were a number of wonderful cooks. And a good cook in the Army is a pearl without price.

There is a good, strong Gaelic touch about the regiment still, however. Four of its high-ranking officers are Irish to the core. The regimental band boasts six bagpipers—of which it will be remembered were Irish in origin.

The regimental insignia, by special dispensation, is not blue in background, as an infantry insignia usually is, but green—a special concession to the Irish origin of the regiment. And it bears two Irish wolfhounds on its shield, with the slogan, in Gaelic, which means "Gentle when stroked, fierce when provoked."

Discipline is stern. A tough, smart spit-and-polish outfit, whose discipline is stern, the regiment went into bivouac at Fort McPherson yesterday with the swift and effortless ease of veterans. The kitchens rolled in first and in a jiffy the smell of chow drifted across the field.

In a twinkling, as the big troop carriers pulled into their park, a city of quilted pup tents went up in ordered rows. The night was threatening cold and three men shared a tent, which gave them a canvas shelter half and a blanket beneath and five blankets on top. In less than an hour soup was on, the tents were up, and the Fighting Irish were bedded down for the night.

They didn't stay there of course. As soon as chow was over they went out upon the town, to dances at the Legion club in Piedmont park, and to the Kimball House, where the regimental band played while the enlisted men trod a state measure or so with 250 young ladies provided by the USO.

Recreation Center To Be Constructed

An $11,000 permanent recreation center for Negro troops will be constructed in Washington Park in Atlanta by the War Department, beginning late next week, it was announced yesterday in Washington.

Equipped with sleeping facilities and a restaurant, the center will have facilities for 500 men.

It is expected to be completed within six weeks and will be the third such center for Negro troops in the Fourth Corps Area.

Enemy Air Raid Set for Tonight in Marietta

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—This city is all set for one of the biggest Armistice Day programs in its history. Plans have been perfected for a wartime "blackout" scheduled for 6:30 p. m. with all approaches to the city blocked for five minutes by state police, with every light in the city turned off or covered, with Army planes circling and dropping pamphlets in lieu of bombs, while gigantic searchlights pierce the air, and sirens wail their warning of the approaching "enemy."

The "blackout" program will be staged by the State Defense Corps, there being units present from six counties, Cherokee, Cobb, Douglas, Haralson, Paulding and Pickens. The blackout will last for only five minutes, but this is only part of the martial ceremonies planned for the occasion. One of the largest parades the city has seen will be forming prior and during the blackout, and at 7 p. m. will march through the city, ending in front of the courthouse for brief ceremonies.

A county-wide fish fry which will take place at the fair grounds following the parade. This is being put on by the American Legion.

In the afternoon there will be a football game between Marietta High and Canton High.

STONE TO SPEAK AT DALTON

DALTON, Ga., Nov. 10.—Guy Stone, of Glenwood, state commander of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker at annual Armistice Day services to be held in Dalton Tuesday, Robert Hamilton, commander of the Dalton Post, announced. Armistice Day services here are being sponsored jointly by the American Legion and the Red Cross.

A barbecue will be given at the Country Club at noon Tuesday by the American Legion in honor of Commander Stone and he is to address Whitfield and Murray county ex-service men Tuesday evening. The Armistice Day parade, with Lieutenant Britton in charge, will be held in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

CELEBRATION SET AT MADISON

MADISON, Ga., Nov. 10.—The Calvin George Post of the American Legion will observe Armistice Day with a banquet November 11 in the Madison gymnasium. One hundred and twenty-five members of the Legion and its auxiliary are expected to attend. Commander Albert Turnell and Mrs. Brooks Pennington, the auxiliary president, will have charge of the dinner.

Later in the evening the Morgan county unit of the State Defense Corps will stage a celebration honoring the Post and Unit. Following a drill exhibition the Defense Corps will be hosts at a dance.

The Legion Auxiliary will give a program in the school auditorium tomorrow morning and will sponsor the Poppy sale throughout Morgan county.

ADDRESSES TO FEATURE ELBERTON EXERCISES

ELBERTON, Ga., Nov. 10.—Commander H. J. Price, of the local post of the American Legion, announces that Armistice Day will be observed here Tuesday on the public square, with addresses by Mayor B. I. Sutton and the Rev. Marc C. Wersing of the Presbyterian church. The high school band will lead the parade to the square and play during the exercises.

The speakers will be introduced by Walter E. Whitehead.

6 VALLEY TOWNS TO CELEBRATE

WEST POINT, Ga., Nov. 10.—Sponsored by the local post of the American Legion, an Armistice Day program has been planned for Tuesday, to be participated in by the six towns of the Chattahoochee Valley, the 75-piece military band from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and state guard companies from Opelika, Phenix City, Tuskegee, and the Valley.

Patriotic exercises will be held in all the valley schools Tuesday morning. The big parade will begin at 3 p. m., to be followed by a mass celebration in the Lanett park, at which time Colonel Will O. Walton, of LaFayette, will deliver the address.

Erwin R. Lehmann, of Langdale, central area commander of the Alabama American Legion, will conduct a competitive drill of the state guard units at the exercises in the Lanett park. A barbecue will be served 500 in the Lanett athletic hall at 5 p. m. Robert A. Turner will be parade marshal.

BROOKS SCHOOLS TO HOLD PROGRAMS

QUITMAN, Ga., Nov. 10.—Armistice Day will be observed here Tuesday with programs in every white high school in Brooks county and at a meeting of the American Legion and the Auxiliary Tuesday night at the Legion home. Speakers on school programs are: the Rev. F. H. McElroy, at Quitman grammar school; Wallace E. Harrell, at Quitman High; Mrs. J. W. Oglesby, at Barney; Brantley Baum, at Dixie; Haygood Smith, at Morven; the Rev. H. G. Shearouse, at Barwick.

Speakers at the Legion meeting will be Captain D. I. Moller and Lieutenant Joe Thrash, of the air school at Moultrie. At 12:30 p. m. on Armistice Day, the Quitman Woman's Club will have its annual luncheon meeting and will have a forum on defense activities in the community with several brief talks.

PAST COMMANDER TO SPEAK AT BRUNSWICK

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 10.—Emory Bass, a past commander of the Georgia department, American Legion, and Dr. Ralph Newton, superintendent of Waycross public schools, will be principal speakers in Brunswick Tuesday at the Armistice Day celebrations arranged by the Brunswick Unit No. 9, American Legion. Dr. Newton will address an open air assembly of all the white pupils in the local schools at 11 o'clock, and Mr. Bass will be main speaker at a joint luncheon at the Oglethorpe hotel at 1 o'clock of all the civic clubs of Glynn county, American Legion, and city and county officials and will, on Tuesday night, address the Legion members at their annual Armistice Day banquet.

STORES TO CLOSE IN VALDOSTA

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—The Armistice Day program here, which is under the direction of the American Legion, will emphasize the present need of civilian defense work. All stores and business concerns in the city will be closed, and the program will be presented at the shell on the High school campus.

All schools will be closed, and in the afternoon a large number of Valdosta citizens will go to Thomasville to see the gridiron battle there between the Thomasville High school Bulldogs and the Valdosta High school Wildcats. The teams alternate the Armistice Day game between the two towns and this year Thomasville is host to the battling teams.

LEGION MEMBER IS LAGRANGE SPEAKER

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 10.—The twenty-third anniversary of the Armistice Day celebrations will be observed here tomorrow at 11 o'clock when the American Legion will present the program for the day at the LaGrange theater. Featured speaker of the occasion will be the Rev. Ronald (Scotty) Young, prominent Baptist minister of Newnan and a member of the American Legion.

The Drum and Bugle Corps of the Sons of the Legion, many times state champion, will lead a parade to the theater, where special honor will be paid to LaGrange's Gold Star mothers, Mrs. E. A. Hamer, of Route 2, Mrs.

A. F. Payne and Mrs. Mary Ann Gross, both of this city.

B. A. Lancaster, superintendent of the city schools, announces 700 high school pupils will parade with the Junior Drum and Bugle Corps from Broad street to the LaGrange theater. There will be no holiday in the city schools for Armistice Day.

M. T. Johnson is adjutant of the local Baxter L. Schaub Post of the American Legion.

RED CROSS PARADE SET AT SPARTA

SPARTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—Sparta stores and business houses will be closed all day Tuesday in celebration of Armistice Day. The Red Cross parade, which annually opens the drive for memberships, will be the main observance of the day. Boy Scouts and the home defense unit will lead the parade, which will be one of the longest yet put on here, according to Chairman Herbert Rountree, of the roll call committee.

ALBANY TO OBSERVE DAY

ALBANY, Ga., Nov. 10.—For the first time since 1918, Albany stores will observe a full holiday Armistice Day, Mrs. Clara Conroy, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, announces. Presence of two air schools for Army cadets

Golf Clubs For 15 Cents Daily Seen

Bag and Three Balls Would Be Provided Under Plan.

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Atlantans soon may be able to play golf without owning a set of clubs. Of course many are doing that already, but if a tentative plan of club rental goes through, those pesky neighbors will have no further excuse to borrow your golf clubs.

Under the arrangement already approved by George L. Simons, city parks manager, a golf bag, five clubs and three used balls will be rentable at any of the municipal golf courses for only 15 cents per day.

All one has to do is identify himself (or herself) and fill out a card and turn it in with the fee in order to rent the clubs. No deposit is required, and no red tape is included. Of course, the usual green fee will be charged, just the same as if you owned your own clubs.

The plan is still tentative, and details will have to be worked out by the professionals at the five city-owned golf courses when the matter is brought up for their approval. Joe McDonald, chairman of the industrial development committee of the National Golf Foundation, who was in town yesterday, stated he expects to return about February 15 with the idea of being on hand for the opening of the rent-a-club program on March 1.

If the program is inaugurated, Atlanta will be the fifteenth city in the United States offering this service. He praised Atlanta's municipal golf system, saying that he had never seen more public links than any other city of this size in the country.

Rome Recruiting Office Gets Additional Officer

ROME, Ga., Nov. 10.—The Rome recruiting force for the U. S. Marine Corps has been strengthened by three men with the addition of Sergeant Robert E. Metz to the local office.

Sergeant Metz joins Sergeant S. F. Buysens and S. S. Puryear, who are conducting a recruiting drive throughout northwest Georgia.

The new recruiter has 16 years of service in the corps and has been presented the Nicaraguan ribbon for duty in the Nicaraguan campaign, the Haitian ribbon for the Haitian campaign and the Yangtze ribbon for three years' duty in China.

23 Husbands Clean Garden Plot for Wives---And How!

The 23 good lady members of the Flower Study Club have a nice clean plot of ground just across the way from the 12th tee at the Brookhaven Country Club.

It's unusually clean—not a bush or a vine on the plot, and the members of the club were planning to have some beautiful roses next spring, with small mimosa trees artistically arranged in and about the garden.

Saturday the club members discussed the prospects of the garden.

ent varieties of roses which should blossom forth in all their glory. "We should do some work on the plot now," one lady member said. "It won't take long—let's get our husbands to come over Sunday with hoes and rakes and clean it off."

Sunday 23 husbands and their wives arrived on the scene. But it was cold Sunday, and the good women soon discovered that they would be more comfortable sitting in an automobile and supervising the work.

The 23 good husbands reluctantly went about the task, one eye on the garden, and the other eye on the wives. As the car doors opened shrill screams went up from the members of the Flower Study Club.

One husband struck a match, and a moment later, the pile was a mass of flames.

Soon the lot was clean. The wives were invited to step out of the warm automobiles and approve the labors of their husbands. As the car doors opened shrill screams went up from the members of the Flower Study Club.

"Where are the mimosas?" one woman shouted.

"Where are the roses?" another inquired.

And then they realized that their husbands had really cleaned off the plot, destroying all roses, mimosas and other plants which the club members had nursed all summer, and which were scheduled to bloom next spring. Along

Tobin Accedes To F. D. R. Request, Calls Off Strike

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Daniel M. Tobin, president of the AFL Teamsters Union, who was requested twice by President Roosevelt to call off a strike of 60 Railway Express truck drivers in Detroit, today ordered the men to go back to work immediately.

Tobin issued the order after polling the union's executive board on whether the strike should continue.

"We took the action reluctantly in view of the fact the company broke an agreement with us," Tobin said, "but we did it in deference to the wishes of the President and due to the emergency."

Some air and rail shipments, tied up by the strike, were reported to be vital to defense plants. Spread of the strike to other cities had been threatened. The difficulty arose October 4 when members of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL) struck for recognition. A collective bargaining election, conducted by the National Railway Mediation Board, was won by the clerks and the teamsters, contending it was invalid, then went on strike.

At least 11 persons were injured in picket line clashes.

Spokesmen for Tobin said the "back to work" order would be effective tomorrow unless a holiday schedule interfered.

The President had asked the union to submit the dispute to an emergency three-man board and union spokesmen said they assumed further efforts would be made at once to arrive at an agreement.

The poll of the union executive board was taken by telegraph and in his messages, Tobin said, "We are on strike because the company broke an agreement entered into to recognize our people as the bargaining agency."

He also declared that "my interference with the defense program as the express company does not handle materials necessary for defense, and if so, there are several other methods of transportation, especially over the road trucking and airplane."

At Detroit, Tobin's orders were read tonight to strikers, who agreed to return to work tomorrow, and picket lines were discontinued.

Two More Steel Strikers Held; Attack Alleged

Good-Behavior Warrants Taken Out by Former CIO Official.

Two more steel workers on strike at the plant of the Atlantic Steel Company were in Fulton Tower last night on good behavior warrants taken out by W. E. Morris, one-time president of Local 2401, Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, CIO.

Morris appeared before Judge L. Z. Rosser yesterday afternoon and charged that he had been beaten up on Sunday by O. J. Stanley, of 29 Elmwood road, a former deputy sheriff, and a star witness in the graft investigation in the sheriff's office during the later part of the term of the late Sheriff Lowry, and A. L. Lowry, of McMullins street, N. W. He said he had been working in the plant until several days ago. Judge Rosser issued the warrants and sent marshals from his court to make the arrests.

Party To Be Held For Dr. Broyles

Members of Park Street Methodist church, Lee street and Park avenue, will honor their pastor, Dr. E. Nash Broyles, tomorrow night with a birthday party. The Maytha Bible Class will serve a dinner from 6 to 7:15 o'clock preceding the program. An attendance of 500 is expected.

Dr. Broyles, completing his second year at the church, has won wide recognition for having increased attendance at his mid-week prayer services from an average of 12 to 125, with 375 the highest recorded.

PRIORITIES UNLIMBER—The first load of 110 tons of structural steel—seven carloads—needed for reconstruction of the fire-razed front portion of the municipal auditorium arrived yesterday. Burt Wellborn, general manager of the auditorium; A. P. Almond, architectural engineer for Robert & Company, engineers, and Alderman Raleigh Drennon, chairman of the municipal buildings and athletic committee, check it in. Cost of replacing the structure will be about $265,000.

Railroad Strike Not Likely, Says F. D. R.'s Arbitrator

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Doubt that the railroad brotherhoods would go through with their threat to call a nationwide strike, was expressed today by Dean Wayne Morse who headed President Roosevelt's emergency board in railroad arbitration.

"I do not expect a railroad strike," Dean Morse declared, adding that he spoke "entirely unofficially."

"I am confident that the leaders of railroad labor are too loyal to the trust they owe their men, and too familiar with the facts developed before the President's Emergency Board to make the grievous mistake of leading their men into an unjustifiable strike, such as a railroad strike would be at this time," he said.

Agreed To Boost. More is dean of the law school of University of Oregon, and arbitrator for west coast waterfront labor disputes.

His committee agreed to boost railroad wages on a scale varying from 7½ to 13½ per cent. The operating brotherhoods, asking 30 per cent, rejected the report. Non-operating unions, asking 30 to 34 cents an hour, have taken no action. The railroads accepted it.

"It is quite possible that some adjustments of differences over the decision can be made by renewed negotiations between the carriers and the brotherhoods," Dean Morse conceded. "However, any such adjustments if and when made, should not be made on the basis of the employees placing a 'strike gun' to the government's head."

Issue Significant. "Railroad labor should ponder long and seriously that a strike would damage irreparably the judicial processes provided for in the railway labor act . . . The issue involved in the threatened strike is a much more significant one than the men seem to realize. It raises the issue of supremacy of judicial process over economic force."

"It confronts the American public with another opportunity to decide whether we shall have government by law or by pressure groups."

LABOR RECORD CITED AS GOOD OMEN IN DISPUTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The labor record of American railroads was cited today by the Twentieth Century Fund as an omen that the threatened railroad brotherhoods' strike set for December 5 might be averted.

The research organization reported: "Upon some 18 occasions since the passage of the railway labor act in 1926, existing disputes were sufficiently serious to warrant the appointment of emergency boards of investigation."

"With one exception, the recommendations of the boards were accepted by both sides and the disputes ended, although acceptance is in no sense mandatory."

Cole's Patented Hot Blast Draft Saves Fuel

Cole's Hot Blast makes the coal pile last. Cole's Hot Blast Combustion is a scientific economical method of burning coal. The Hot Blast Draft in Cole's Original Hot Blast Heater is something more than a name. It is the main burning draft. The fire is started from the top and the fuel is burned entirely from the top. The air is heated to over 600° F., and forms an instantaneous chemical union for a perfect combustion of the gas half of the fuel wasted in underdraft heaters.

Board Rejects CIO Demands

Mediation Board with the understanding that neither the union nor the steel companies was bound to accept its findings.

The only enforcement the decision can have is the weight of public opinion.

The fuel recommendations of the majority of the Mediation Board were not made public. Davis said that the dissenting members wished to prepare a minority recommendation, and that the majority recommendation would be withheld until the minority report was ready. It was indicated this might be tomorrow.

"No Opinion."

The finding was reported at a press conference in the Mediation Board headquarters.

When a reporter asked Davis whether he feared that the outcome might cause a new strike, the board chairman replied that he had "no opinion."

He was asked: "Then the next step is to enforce the recommendations, is it not?"

"Well, I'm hoping that the next step is to accept the recommendations."

In one particular at least, it was known, the decision was in line with Davis' wish. He had desired that as large a majority as possible be aligned for whatever decision was ultimately made.

In Pittsburgh, P. T. Fagan, president of District 5, United Mine Workers, declared: "It's a rotten decision. But any comment must come from John L. Lewis."

City May Hedge On OPM Order

The city government will launch a drive to beat priorities to the draw with a fund ranging from $100,000 to $150,000, it was decided yesterday.

Municipal department heads will be asked by the purchasing committee of council, headed by Alderman L. O. Moseley, to file their requisitions for materials the city will need next year in order that orders can be placed as soon as possible to insure deliveries.

Police cars, sanitary trucks and some other motor equipment must be replaced, and then too, some electric cable and other supplies are on priority lists. Moseley pointed out that if the government waits until these things are mandatory it may not be able to make the needed purchases.

U. S. Is Asked To Quit Oleo Advertising

Congressman Says 3,000,000 Dairy Farmers Will Join Fight.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Representative August H. Andresen, Republican, Minnesota, declared tonight that "more than 3,000,000 American dairy farmers will join in the fight to stop government officials from acting as salesmen and advertising agents for oleo."

The Minnesota congressman, an opponent of the new federal standard for oleomargarine, established by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, made the assertion in an address prepared for the annual convention of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation.

The "federal oleo standard which permits the manufacture and sale of a synthetic product as an imitator of butter will bring permanent and serious damage to the dairy industry," he said.

"Radio broadcasts from the Department of Agriculture and the issuance of special diets on the part of the government urging consumers to buy and eat the new McNutt oleomargarine instead of butter, is an insult to the intelligence of the American people."

The speaker said there was no objection to the sale of oleo to those who cannot afford to buy butter, but when this synthetic product is sold, it should be sold as oleo and not as an imitator of butter.

Less Sympathy For Hit-Run Drivers Is Urged by Ellis

With 25 per cent of Atlanta's traffic fatalities chargeable to hit-and-run drivers, Assistant Chief of Police Neal Ellis yesterday declared citizens and courts alike must "quit showing sympathy for the offender."

City Installs 'Traffic Clock' For Tryout

Device Invented by Youth Times Red and Green Lights.

A "pedestrian clock," which tells pedestrians exactly how much longer the traffic light will be green or red, yesterday was placed in service by the police traffic department at the intersection of Broad and Marietta streets.

The device, the invention of 10-year-old Tony F. Roselle, is a large flat disk, painted green and red. A hand, moving slowly about the disk, and in time with the traffic light, tells pedestrian and motorist exactly how long it will be until the light changes.

Emmett Elliott, one of the police traffic engineers, said the device was constructed by the youth, with the aid of the city electrician.

It will be given a thorough tryout at the Broad and Marietta intersection, and if it proves practical, will be installed at many other downtown intersections.

Shorter Convicted On Lottery Count

Henry Shorter, 51, Negro barber shop owner and one of the "big shot" lottery operators fined $1,000 and given a suspended sentence several years ago, following a grand jury investigation into lottery activities, yesterday was convicted by a jury in the criminal court of Fulton county on a lottery charge. Judge Jesse M. Wood, the trial judge, announced he would pass sentence on Shorter tomorrow.

Tony Pappas, once convicted on a lottery charge, and whose conditional pardon, granted by former Governor Rivers, but later revoked by the Fulton county courts when he allegedly failed to comply with the conditions of the pardon, was the star witness against Shorter. Pappas later received a pardon from the present Governor on recommendation of Fulton county residents, including Superior Court Judge Paul S. Etheridge.

"Any motorist that runs a person down and leaves him in the street, either dead or dying, deserves no mercy," Chief Ellis declared.

"Convictions are hard for police to get on hit and run offenses because of the display of sympathy for the alleged offender after the accident has been forgotten except by the dead man's family and friends," the chief explained.

Indictments Are Few.

It was pointed out that few grand juries will return murder indictments against drivers of cars which have killed persons on the streets, Ellis asserted. "It is the most the grand jurors will do is charge them with involuntary manslaughter."

The petit juries in the superior courts frequently acquit the drivers even of this charge, though the evidence may clearly show the drivers were drunk and violating several laws when they caused the deaths.

It is this lethargy on the part of the public that Ellis is seeking to combat.

"The people must realize the importance of punishing automobile drivers who violate the law and kill men, women and children on the streets," Ellis asserted. "It is especially bad when they run over some man or woman and then leave the scene of the accident. These hit-run drivers must be convicted and given stiff sentences to stop this slaughter."

8 Hit-Run Victims.

Through yesterday, Chief Ellis reported eight persons had been killed in the city limits by hit-run drivers. Thirty-two persons have been killed this year in traffic accidents of all kinds.

Chief Ellis said that of the five hit-run cases bound over to higher courts from the recorder's court this year only one has resulted in a conviction, that being when Aaron Rousier was given two to three years for involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. J. O. Hitchcock at Murphy street and Sylvan road on August 31.

The four cases awaiting trial include two indicted for involuntary manslaughter, one indicted for murder and one bound over for drunk and reckless driving. One of the involuntary manslaughter cases occurred in May, police pointed out.

The first traffic fatality of the year due to a hit-and-run accident remains unsolved, as does the last one in which J. H. Burgess was killed.

Ellis Expresses Pride.

Burgess died early Sunday of injuries he received late Friday when struck by a hit-and-run motorist at Bankhead avenue and Oliver street.

Chief Ellis expressed pride in the record of apprehensions his department has made.

Of seven accidents the department has investigated thus far this year six have been solved and cleared up. The department has made no investigation as yet into the death of Burgess.

Mrs. Janie Greene Dies; Rites Today

Mrs. Janie L. Greene, of 830 Eastwood avenue, S. E., widow of Harry Greene and mother of Mrs. Agnes Greene Jones, died Sunday night at a private hospital. A native Atlantian, Mrs. Greene was associated with the retail florist business here for several years.

Unknown Dead Repeat Lesson Of Patriotism

than at the services commemorating the unknown dead of that war, for men who had given no life alone, but their very identity for the flags they served.

Even before America chose from her unknown war dead in France him who was to symbolize all in his long sleep beneath a massive stone in Arlington cemetery the theme of that first Armistice Day had been given above his tomb. It is carved across the arch of the Arlington amphitheater, in Lincoln's words, spoken at Gettysburg:

"Let us here highly resolve that these honored dead shall not have died in vain."

Just 20 years ago this Armistice Day the American Unknown came to his honored resting place. The nation stood at pause. Another President reiterated that solemn pledge of Lincoln's that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth. It was for that this honored soldier had died as men, women and children of another generation have since died in a new war; as still more are fated to die in a world chaotic with war.

This Armistice Day there is ironic symbolism in the fact that as the sleeper at Arlington takes his long rest, his head is pillowed on a handful of earth taken up in France to make the long journey home with him. His life-blood had helped free the soil of France of invaders; but only for a double decade. Today all France is under the domination of a conqueror. That bit of French soil at Arlington, deep in the shrine Americans have made of the simple tomb, is about all of France that still is free except the heartbeat of her freedom-loving people that can never be stilled.

Twenty years have melted to ivory the white pillared memorial amphitheater at Arlington, looming above the sleeper's tomb; but the autumnal coloring of the dying year is as gay now as then.

Somber echoes of far distant gunfire; the rumble of war tanks; the thud of the marching feet of a nation, called anew to arms against grim uncertainties of the future, disturb a little the quiet to which a lulling bugle call left the Unknown Soldier. Perhaps his own son is girding now for defense of the flag as his father girded—and died—before him.

For that is the lesson that he who runs may read at Arlington, whether in the lonely grandeur of the Unknown's tomb, or among the ranked gravestones of the known war dead that march over the quiet hills of that field of honor. They came when called, these sleepers, to die at need for the flag. Their sons go not unheeding of their heritage of valor, nor will their sons' sons to the end of time.

At the City Hall

The city government will begin saving $4,800 a year on milk purchased for patients at municipally operated charity hospitals beginning December 1, according to bids accepted yesterday by the purchasing committee of council. Powell's dairy bidding 36 cents a gallon—eight cents a gallon below the Atlanta milk shed price—will get the new contract. The state board of control had allowed bidders to offer their product for sale as low as 34 cents a gallon.

Dr. Dan Lawrence yesterday was assigned as examiner in the food handlers' division of the city health department. He succeeds Dr. Elkin Vogt, who resigned.

Atlanta Board of Education will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church in East Point, with the Rev. W. A. Duncan officiating. Burial will be in the College Park cemetery, under the direction of Carmichael.

All non-school offices at the city hall will be closed today in observance of Armistice Day, but the school department will operate full blast.

Mrs. H. F. Stanfield Succumbs Here at 28

Mrs. H. F. Stanfield, 28, died yesterday at the residence, 215 St. Michael street, in East Point.

She is survived by her husband, H. F. Stanfield; a son, Kenneth; three sisters, Miss Ruby Duncan, Mrs. L. C. Northcutt and Mrs. R. M. Daly, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church in East Point, with the Rev. W. A. Duncan officiating. Burial will be in the College Park cemetery, under the direction of Carmichael.

Helen Traubel Shows Wealth Of Vocal Ability

Jovial Soprano Called Fascinating New Personality.

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY.

A fascinating new personality sang to Atlanta's All-Star subscribers last night at the city auditorium, and the old-timers were sitting on the edge of their chairs, smiling and nodding at each other. It was like the good old days.

No streamlined Hollywooder, with an 18-inch waist and a voice as thin, was last evening's attraction. But a healthy, jovial soprano who could have held her own with the best of them, back in "those days"—Helen Traubel is the real thing.

Intensive Training.

Endowed with a wealth of vocal eloquence, an amazing range, and a charming stage personality, the American singer has added to these natural gifts by long years of intensive training, an enunciation that is perfect, breath control that is astounding, and sheer artistry that is proof that this country can develop a real singer.

Opening with a Beethoven group, followed by the taxing aria from Wagner's "Lohengrin," "Elsa's Dream," Miss Traubel encircled with "Japanese Death Song," by Earl Cranston Sharp. Next she sang a Schubert trio, ending the first half of the program with three songs by Richard Strauss, one of which was an encore.

Sings Spirituals.

The after-entertainment program was begun by Coenraad V. Bos, at the piano. Delighting the audience with his interpretations of Rachmaninoff's "Elegie," a "Song Without Words," by Mendelssohn, he was compelled to take several bows and generously gave another number, "Minuet," by Seabrook. Miss Traubel ended the evening with an aria, "Voilà! Voilà!" from "Cavalleria Rusticana," two Negro spirituals, "Deep River" and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot"; and finally an English song, "Sea Shell," by Carl Engel; "A Memory," by Blair Fairchild, and "Blow, Blow, Thine Winter Wind," by McNair Igeeritz.

Offering as many encores as the house asked, the singer thrilled the audience with her singing of Oley Speaks' "Morning." Yet after her strenuous program, the Wagnerian soprano seemed "just warmed up." No wonder Edward Johnson and those in company at the Metropolitan are clamoring for her services. Flagstad should look to her laurels.

Clarke Farm Family To Increase Food Crops

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 10.—For years the Amos C. Craft family has been growing plenty of food and feed, but now they've made plans to expand their normal production in 1942 as their part in the United States Department of Agriculture's food-for-freedom program.

Bigger production of food supplies and a reduction in the cotton acreage are some of the objectives being planned by this Clarke county farm family. As a matter of fact wheat for flour and other fall-sown crops have been planted as means of food insurance for 1942.

Canning of vegetables and meats has long been a practice of the Crafts. Usually they conserve about 800 quarts of food each year for home use, there being nine in the family. All the food for canning is home-grown. A calf is grown out for canning every fall.

Memorial Fountain Assured at LaGrange

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 10.—Horton Lovejoy, chairman of the larger gifts committee for the drive for funds for the erection of an electric memorial fountain in the center of the public square here, reported Saturday that $24,000 of the necessary $30,000 has been pledged by LaGrange firms and individuals.

This assures the project for the improvement of the Court Square Park and the building of the memorial fountain dedicated to the "Builders of LaGrange and Troup County," which was first proposed some months ago by the directors of the LaGrange Chamber of Commerce.

At that time, Fuller E. Callaway Jr., pledged $12,500 for the Fuller E. Callaway Foundation, if the remaining funds were raised by the residents of the city and county. A general drive offering the opportunity to give toward the project to each man, woman and child in Troup county will be launched shortly by a committee to be selected soon.

SAVES LIFE, LOSES OWN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(P)—Mrs. Jane Trelli, 25, saved the life of her son, Joseph, 5, today and lost her own. She pushed the boy out of the path of a truck, which mounted a sidewalk, and crushed her against the side of a building.

Radical Indian Political Leader Plotting Invasion With the Axis

NEW DELHI, Nov. 10.—(INS)—According to a communique issued by the Indian Council of State.

Bitterly anti-British, Bose vanished from a Calcutta hospital last January after having been transferred there because of illness from a prison where he had been held under the "defense of India" act. He served twice as president of India's Congress party, the country's largest political organization.

He appeared to have followed the example of the anti-British grand mufti of Jerusalem who escaped a British manhunt and arrived last week in Rome, proceeding later to Berlin.

SCOTSWOMAN DESCRIBES AN ENEMY AIR RAID

HOSCHTON, Ga., Nov. 10.—(P) Mrs. J. P. Mahaffey relates that an aged Scotswoman, writing thanks for bundles for Britain, dropped in this paragraph:

"When the air raid warning sounds, I take the Bible from the shelf and read the 23rd psalm. Then I put up a wee bit prayer. Then I take a wee drape o' whisky to steady my nerves. Then I get into bed and pull up the covers. And then I tell Hitler to go to hell!"

States Can Tax Contractors on Defense Work

Supreme Court Upholds Right To Levy on 'Cost Plus' Jobs.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The right of a state to tax private contractors working for the federal government on a "cost plus" basis was affirmed by the supreme court today in decisions which, by Justice Department estimates, may add $82,000,000 to the cost of defense construction during the current fiscal year.

The court held specifically that sales and use taxes imposed by Alabama on construction materials purchased by contractors who later were to be reimbursed by the United States did not violate the federal government's immunity from state taxation. A decision by the Alabama state supreme court setting aside the taxes was reversed in today's decision, read by Chief Justice Stone. There was no dissent.

House Directs Fish To Ignore His Subpoena

Told To Await Report Of Judiciary Group Before Appearing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The house of representatives today directed its judiciary committee to determine whether a District of Columbia grand jury infringed congressional rights in calling Representative Fish, Republican, New York, to testify in an inquiry into alleged Nazi propaganda.

The house also directed Representative Fish to refrain from appearing in answer to the subpoena until the judiciary group reports. Chairman Sumners, Democrat, Texas, said the committee would be called to meet Wednesday, the same day the subpoena directs Fish to appear in district court.

The subpoena was issued in connection with the grand jury inquiry into alleged misuse of the congressional frank in connection with the distribution of propaganda.

Fish had the subpoena read to the house and then said: "Under the precedents of the house, I find that I am unable to comply with this summons, without consent of the house, the privilege of the house being involved."

Chile's President Is Sick, Retires

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 10.—(AP)—President Pedro Aguirre Cerda, who took office three years ago as head of the first—and only—popular front government in the Western Hemisphere, gave over the executive powers tonight to Geronimo Mendez, leader of the Radical party, declaring that ill health made it impossible for him to continue his duties.

It was announced that Aguirre's retirement was temporary and was due to an attack of bronchitis and grippe from which he has suffered severely of late.

Mendez took over the presidential duties at 10 p. m.

Cofers Make Bond, Released In Lee Slaying

Trial of Brothers To Be Held at Brunswick in January.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Henry J. and W. H. Cofers, brothers indicted for murder in the 1938 slaying of Dr. Charles H. Lee Episcopal rector, were released on bond of $12,500 each today and will be placed on trial at the January term of court.

The two were released on bond after their indictment but were taken into custody again recently. George Clayborn, Negro under life sentence in the case, testified at today's hearing that he knew nothing about the slaying of the vice-crusading churchman. The Cofers brothers, he said, were not involved as far as he knew and previous statements he made concerning them were given because he was "scared."

The grand jury indicted Clayborn and the Cofers brothers after police said Clayborn admitted that he was hired by the brothers to shoot Dr. Lee.

During the trial of Clayborn, a witness for the state, Mrs. Carrie Stevens, testified that she saw H. J. Cofers pay Clayborn $150 "to do the job." The attorney for the brothers today presented affidavits from her which he said contradicted much of her trial testimony.

Judge Gordon Knox said the case against the brothers would be disposed of at the January session of court.

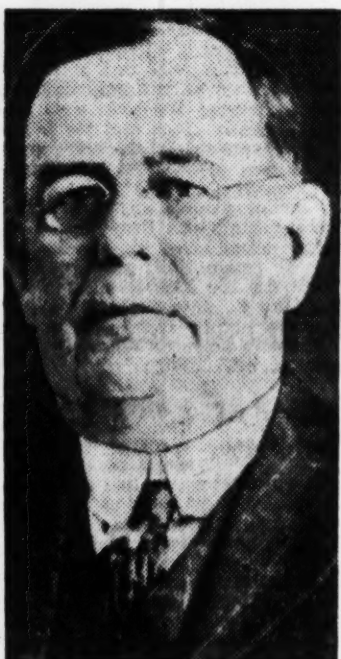

West Point Firms To Hold Meeting

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

WEST POINT, Ga., Nov. 10.—The annual stockholders' meeting of the West Point Manufacturing Company and the Lanett Bleachery and Dye Works will be held next Thursday, George H. Lanier, of West Point, is president of the two corporations.

Arriving early this week to attend these meetings will be a group of industrialists from Boston and New York. Joining this group on Tuesday, to make an inspection of the textile industries of the West Point territory will be 25 businessmen from Georgia and Alabama, special guests of George H. Lanier.

Governor Frank Dixon, of Alabama, will be the speaker at a joint luncheon of the Lions and Rotary clubs, Thursday, to honor the visitors.

HONORED—The Rotary Club presented H. Y. McCord Sr., shown above, with a large basket of flowers on his 87th birthday yesterday. The presentation was made at the weekly luncheon.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Nov. 10.—A Junior Cadet Corps of the Home Defense Corps has been organized here with Herbert Freeman, cadet major.

The Junior High school battalion has Kermit Jones as cadet captain and Ethridge Lee as cadet first lieutenant.

The Senior High school battalion has Francis Wildes as cadet captain and Marvin Coleman as cadet first lieutenant with Eugene Cribb as clerk and Harold Sauls as bugler.

The first drill was held Thursday night and 59 members were in attendance.

Captain J. Clem Hardy and First Lieutenant E. F. Dill, of the Home Defense Corps, are in charge of the training of the cadet units.

Mass Hostage Slayings Are To Be Protested

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 10.—Several hundred people from Athens and northeast Georgia will assemble here next Sunday to protest the mass "hostage" slayings by the dictator conquerors of Europe. Announcement of the meeting was made by Judge Blanton Fortson, chairman of the executive group of the local Committee to Defend America.

In addition to Judge Fortson, the committee includes Max Michael, R. P. Brooks, W. L. Moss, E. M. Coulter, R. V. Watterson, J. W. Firor, John Morris and E. B. Braswell.

The meetings, which are to be held in all parts of the country, will adopt resolutions which will be collected by the Free World Association in New York and broadcast to Europe in all languages. Radio and cable messages between the national groups will be exchanged.

Cylinder Head On Rail Blamed In Fatal Crash

Death Toll in Accident Climbs to 12 as Four More Die.

KENTON, Ohio, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A half-ton cylinder head blown from a passing freight locomotive into the path of a speeding Pennsylvania railroad luxury train was blamed tonight for a wreck that killed 12 persons and injured at least 40 others.

H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the railroad, said that the Chicago-to-New York flyer struck the obstacle before there was time to flag it down.

The big locomotive rocked, then plunged from the track and smashed a control tower at Dunkirk, 10 miles north of here, last night.

One railroad spokesman estimated damage at about $250,000.

Eleven of the fatally injured had been identified tonight, but authorities still sought clues to the identity of one woman. Eight of the dead were killed outright. The other four died during the day in hospitals.

While state and federal investigators hurried to Dunkirk to study the twisted mass of steel, the Pennsylvania ordered an investigation for 9:30 a. m. Wednesday at the Fort Wayne, Ind., division headquarters.

It was questionable how soon anyone would hear the story of R. S. Schuler, of Fort Wayne, the train's engineer, who was hurled 25 yards from his cab and injured seriously. One arm was amputated today.

Truce Arranged In Yale Strike

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 10.—(INS)—A settlement under which striking maintenance employees at Yale University will return to work tomorrow was agreed upon tonight after loyal sons of old Eli put in a day of bed making, dusting and cleaning without complaint.

The truce was arranged during a day-long conference among members of the state board of mediation, representatives of the university and leaders of the CIO union sponsoring the strike. Under the settlement negotiations of issues involved, principally the union demand for a closed shop, will be re-opened on November 18.

George Browne Post With IATSE Filled

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Election of Richard F. Walsh, of Brooklyn, to succeed George W. Browne as president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employers and Moving Picture Machine Operators was announced here today by Louis Krouse, union secretary-treasurer.

Browne and William Bioff, his representative in Hollywood, were convicted in New York federal court last week on charges of extorting money from motion picture executives.

Krouse said Browne had resigned as president of the union and that his successor was chosen by the union's executive committee, meeting in Atlantic City yesterday.

P.T.A. Founder To Be Honored At Marietta

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—Plans have been completed for the erection of the Birney Memorial in Marietta.

The late Alice Birney was the founder of the now nationwide Parent-Teachers' Association and a native of Marietta. Stones from every state in the union have been collected and will be included in the memorial.

Mrs. Charles D. Center, secretary of the national organization, and Carroll Downs, representative of Robert & Co., who will construct the memorial, will be in Marietta this week to inspect the Polk street lot, provided by the city, and arrange for construction work.

Fred M. Raymond, chairman of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and L. W. Robert Jr., state that unveiling ceremonies will take place not later than May, 1942.

Drawings of the proposed memorial have been distributed to state P.T.A.'s throughout the country by Mr. Robert, who will supervise the placing of the native stones sent in by the different states. Each stone will bear an engraved tribute to Mrs. Birney.

The design of the memorial calls for a generous sized plaza in the center of which will be a fountain bearing a memorial inscription.

All construction work will be done by Robert & Co. as a donation by the members of that family. Mrs. Robert states that she and her daughter, Alice Birney Robert, will be in Marietta the last week in November to take part in a special program before a combined audience of Marietta school children and P.T.A. members.

Guernsey Sale Is Held at Athens

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Georgia Guernsey Breeders' Association sponsored the sale here today of 28 heifers and milk cows at an average price of $175 each.

The highest single price was $350. Most of the cattle was sold to Georgia farmers and breeders. Frank W. Fitch, Agricultural Extension Service dairy specialist, said the addition of the good breeding stock to the state's herds should add to the production of dairy products.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 11, 1941.

The Voices of Friends

In 25 cases alone, work stoppages in the nation's defense industries, due to strikes, cost the United States, in one week, 918,940 man hours of labor, a loss which can never be replaced.

That was last week. The record for recent months shows many millions of hours of work on vital defense industry so lost. The crime of the situation is that organized labor, while thus sabotaging the safety of the country, at the same time is rapidly scuttling all the gains made by organized labor itself in recent years.

Warning to this effect has come, repeatedly, not from the lips of foes of the union movement, but from its best and staunchest friends. Sick at heart these friends have told, in solemn words, the inevitable result of this continued ruthless use of the power to strike, in an hour when every man in a defense factory should regard himself as a front-line soldier, charged with his nation's safety and her highest honor.

Sidney Hillman, with a record of union service unexcelled by that of any living man in America, former vice president of the CIO and now associate director of the Office of Production Management, on Sunday declared that if labor would preserve its fundamental rights for the future, it must concede certain privileges to the needs of defense, today.

Declaring the nation must stop thinking in terms of "strikes as usual," just as it must cast aside "business as usual," Mr. Hillman said. "The less we use the right to strike now the more effectively we safeguard it for the future."

One thing is certain, incontrovertibly true. That is, if labor persists in halting vital defense industry, for such debatable things as closed shops, the check-off, universal unionization, etc., the time is not far distant when triumphant dictators of the totalitarian countries will completely wipe out all forms of labor organizations in this country, as they have already done in Germany.

Representative Robert Ramspeck, member of congress for this, the Fifth Georgia, district, and known throughout his many years of service on Capitol Hill as a consistent fighter for the rights of labor and the unions, speaking last week before a group of government employees here, warned that if organized labor does not itself clean house of the "subversive" minority in its ranks, get rid of the type of leaders who never hesitate to "sell out" labor itself for their own gain, either in money or in power, there is a rising tide of public indignation that will force legislative action that will set back the labor movement for many years.

Blaming the "misconduct of certain leaders and the faithlessness of others," Congressman Ramspeck said "the public has no patience with strikes that impede our production of materials needed for national defense."

And, once the impatience of the public gets out of hand, there will be no stopping the swing of the pendulum until it has swung far to the opposite side to that which true friends of labor desire.

The situation in this country is at a point which could hardly be more serious when labor unions on the Pacific coast challenge the United States Navy itself, over a strike in shipyards there.

When the four great railroad brotherhoods ask strikes that would cripple the nation's transportation system because, forsooth, an impartial group of arbitrators gave them wage increases, but not as large as they think their due, the blind inability to realize the situation of the nation and of the world is almost incomprehensible.

When such a man as John Lewis can defy the President of the United States and keep workers out of coal mines for no other reason than the demand that mine operators throw out of their jobs workers who do not wish to join the Lewis union, the UMW, the nation as a whole feels deepest shame.

When impatience, arising out of this same sense of outrage and of shame, brings the roar of public disapproval of such union tactics to the ears of congress in a challenge so strong it cannot be ignored, organized labor will be shackled for the duration of the emergency.

It is only by voluntary housecleaning as outlined by Congressman Ramspeck, by voluntary surrender of some privileges, temporarily, in order to preserve fundamental rights for the future, that organized labor can avert the catastrophe which now nears its collective head.

It is no wonder that informed men, among the best friends labor ever had, issue solemn warning. If labor is possessed of a modicum of wisdom, it will heed those warnings.

The old traveler, Maxie Schmeling, has won the Nazi iron cross, not only of the first but of the second, or tourist, class.

This Thing Called Luck

Some of the strangest of all human experiences spring from this thing called luck—good or bad—as it happens to fall. One man tumbles out of a 10-story window just as a load of hay is passing and escapes the indelicate experience of being scattered all over the pavement, but a loose brick bounces off another man's head with fatal effect as he strolls quietly along the same street—attending to his own business.

Many a man lives out his span, and never inherits anything more valuable than the bad habits, and the old clothes, of his father, while two strapping youths, at work in an Oklahoma packing plant—probably feeling lucky to have steady jobs—fall heir to $1,853,326 apiece. Oil money it was, and not the least strange about their piece of luck was that experts once explained very carefully there wasn't a drop of the greasy stuff in the whole red-bed country of Oklahoma.

But it wasn't long thereafter oil came gushing out of the ground on Indian reservations all over the state; and an Indian woman named Lete Kolvin, who managed to acquire, through the offices of the good white father in Washington, the customary acreage to appease the loss of her tribal lands, would have been lucky if she'd lived long enough. But she died before luck came her way, and as in many a similar situation, her heirs fell into disagreement, and passed on to their happy hunting grounds, while the matter kicked around in the white man's halls of justice.

Last week, however, the courts discovered the rightful heirs; and the oil companies, which drilled and got the oil in the meantime, were ordered to fork over their share of the profits. So good luck came to the Mayweather boys, Floyd and Willie, descendants of Lete Kolvin; and it came just in time to take advantage of the higher levies under the new federal income tax law.

But what are the guarantees? How can we be sure that if we go to war, Joe Stalin will go to church?

Santa Goes American

It won't be long before Santa Claus comes to town, with his pack laden with all manner of marvelous things to delight the eyes and ears and hearts of young and old alike. It is good to know most of the toys he will tote this year will carry the label—"Made in America." For the United States now makes all but five per cent of its own toys.

The toymakers got an early start this year, before defense shortages developed, and so the toy manufacturers will come through in banner fashion. While shortage of materials hit some manufacturers at the tail end of the producing period, the total volume of toys this year is expected to exceed by a slight margin the bumper "crop" of last year when $240,000,000 worth were put on the market.

Previews of the products indicate this year's toys will illustrate virtually every phase of modern American life, including, of course, military preparation and national defense. All in all, it looks like a good season for good old Santa Claus. Long may his pack bulge with American-made goods!

While the departments and bureaus of Washington swarm with press agents, we are amazed that no one has come up with the old one, about Morgenthau mislaying the national debt by a taxicab.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE NEW $5 AUTO TAX
(From The Americas Times-Recorder)

When the lawmakers were looking for a new form of taxation which would raise a nice pile of money and at the same time reach a large number of people and make them defense tax conscious, they naturally thought of the automobile. Everyone in America rides in an automobile, it seems, and a big per cent of them own one. So a law was passed providing that each automobile owner pay a $5 federal tax for the privilege of operating said automobile.

The only way to escape paying the $5 tax is to put the old gas buggy in cold storage and keep it there permanently. Then you must prove to the tax collector that you haven't operated the car.

The big question on the minds of a lot of people is, what are the owners of the many "wrecks" that travel the highways going to do about the tax proposition when the car itself isn't worth much more than $5. Perhaps, the tax law will result in many of these jalopies being taken off the highways. If so, safety of the highways will be greatly increased and the new law will have accomplished one more good deed. We shall see.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

NOT ACCORDING TO HITLER WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Trained observers of international events saw little, if anything, in the latest speech of Chancellor Hitler to justify the claims of senate isolationists that passage of the neutrality act revision, authorizing the arming of American merchantmen and permitting them to enter belligerent ports, is the final step preliminary to war.

The isolationist claims were heard as a constant refrain throughout the two weeks of senate debate on the bill. Similar warnings have been voiced by the same group in connection with every step taken by the President in pursuance of the administration's foreign policy. But this was the final super-step. It was even hailed as the equivalent of a formal declaration of war.

Hitler's speech, delivered at Munich over the weekend, was made some 24 hours after the senate had passed the bill. Although the cable version deals almost entirely with American affairs, the only reference, directly or indirectly, to the neutrality revision legislation was a reiteration of something he said more than a year ago, namely:

"I have already declared over a year ago that whatever ship carries war materials—that is, material to kill soldiers—will be torpedoed."

LESS BELLICOSE In the same breath, however, he seemed to take a less bellicose attitude about the President's orders to the Navy to shoot first in ridding American defense waters of Axis warcraft. German U-boats, he said, have been ordered to fire on American ships only after being attacked.

To most diplomatic observers, this sounds like the Fuehrer is pulling in his horns a bit in the undeclared shooting war that has been going on west of Iceland ever since one of our destroyers was first fired on by a Nazi submarine.

But as regards the claims of the isolationists, if Hitler saw anything in our latest foreign policy move to bring us nearer a state of actual war, he carefully avoided saying so in his most recent speech.

NOT OUR RESPONSIBILITY During the debate on the isolationist-opposed bill, Senator Barkley, the majority leader, reiterated an assertion made some time back by President Roosevelt that the responsibility for taking the United States into the war might not rest entirely with us. What Hitler does decide about it may be the controlling factor, he pointed out.

There is little argument on the point that what we have done already in the way of British aid has given Hitler ample justification for declaring war on us if he wishes. Certainly we cast aside all semblance of neutrality when we voted some $13,000,000,000 in appropriations for providing the British with needed materials for carrying on the war against the Nazis. Now we have taken steps for similar collaboration with Russia by providing a Soviet loan of $1,000,000,000 for the purchase of war equipment here to be used against the Nazis.

AMPLE EXCUSE If Hitler had been looking for an excuse to declare war on us, he would have found one in our lease-lend program and the various other acts we have committed to show our sympathies for the victims of his aggression. Hence the claims of the noninterventionists about scrapping of the main provisions of the neutrality statute being an act of war never carried serious weight. They were accepted as merely a continuation of the cries that have been heard from the start.

Unless it suits the German dictator's purpose to draw us into conflict, it is still the best informed view in Washington circles that Mr. Roosevelt will continue to follow a course designed to keep us this side of a formal declaration. The shootings and sinkings involving our ships will continue, and are even expected to be stepped up, when we begin to move war supplies to Britain and Russia in our own bottoms under our own flag, but this does not necessarily mean war, and certainly not a second AEF in the sense that isolationists have sought to make the public believe.

TWO ROADS TO WAR As pointed out by administration spokesmen many times during the neutrality debates, the two most likely developments leading to our active participation would be:

- (1) A formal declaration of war against us by the Axis.
- (2) Widespread demands on the part of the American people that we go in.

Hitler's speech did not indicate that he is planning to take the initiative—not until he has Russia and Britain off his hands, at least.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

Not Bounded
By Geography.

On this Armistice Day, the 23rd anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the first World War, it is but natural that thoughts should be turning in a general way to the new war of today, and to the situation of the world and to our part, as Americans, in it.

And it is precisely of that question, as to what Americans have to do with the rest of the world, that I want to talk a little while.

In the first place it seems to me we should quite clearly define just what we mean by America, and by Americans.

It is easy to teach children in school that the United States is a matter of geography, a land bounded by the Atlantic and Pacific oceans on east and west, by Canada to the north and by Mexico to the south. That is, correctly enough, the geographic United States.

But America is more than this. America is the realization of a dream. It is the materialization of an idea. It is a symbol of the highest earthly aspirations of mankind. It is a symbol of the effort of mankind to make true, in the midst of world rivalries and ambitions, the dreams of human freedom that have inspired human hearts and human brains since time began.

A place where all men shall enjoy equal opportunity, where the freedom and the dignity of every individual shall always be respected by his fellows.

And What of Americans?

If we accept these premises, which I do not see how they can be denied, Americans then are something more than mere legal citizens of the 48 states and the District of Columbia. For Americans are exponents of these ideals of freedom. They are the living, human symbols of the aspirations of free men, of great thinkers, of all times and all places.

They are the direct spiritual descendants of the Spartans who established the world's first pure democracy. They are the direct representatives, in this generation, of the Britons who fought to curb the royal power of King John, who won the supreme rights of parliament under the leadership of William Pitt and who have led, even to this day, the world toward democracy.

They inherit the faith of those idealists of the French revolution who believed, with all their souls, in the literal coming of liberty, equality, fraternity. They bear the torch that was once held aloft by Martin Luther and by all the martyrs for freedom of religion, of thought and of speech in Germany and in all the countries of the world.

More than all else, they are touched with the same divine majesty as the Man of Galilee.

Who taught, by word and by precept, of a world to come when all men should be brothers, should be equal in the name of universal love.

This Being True, Then—

This being true, it follows that the real America is more than an area bounded by arbitrary geographic limits. It is something greater, something that permeates all the world.

And real Americans are not only those who are citizens of this grand land, but they are all those who are inspired with the spirit of freedom, those who would die, if needs be, for the rights they feel are inherent possessions of all men.

The ideals of freedom toward which we, as Americans, strive—though we are still far from achieving them—we have inherited from the men and women who have brought those dreams with them from other, and older, lands. Whether we spring from France, we are descended from the Me-flowers, whether our parents traveled to this country in the steerage or whether we ourselves were born under some other flag than the Stars and Stripes, if we carry within us the deep love for freedom which is the foundation of all things American, we are equally Americans.

And it seems to me we should be even men and women if we tried to keep this banner, this torch of idealistic freedom for ourselves alone. If we care for nothing for the men and women, of other nations, who are today dying for the same cause for which our forefathers died.

We have failed, in many things, to prove worthy of the trust we accept from the brains of free men, everywhere. But let us not fail now we have opportunity to repay, in part, what we owe to those who dreamed all for which America stands, before there was an America. Let us give of our strength not only that freedom shall still exist in our own land, but that it shall carry its blessings to the lands from which we all of us came.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

A Chat

With Padway.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—I have just had an interesting chat with Joseph Padway, the general counsel of the AFL and of the Browne-Bioff union or racket.

I telephoned Mr. Padway, who is a judge and was known as a "labor" judge in Milwaukee, to ask if he intended to resign or withdraw from his relationship with the Browne-Bioff racket.

He asked me where I got that report.

I said it was no report but an obvious question in view of the conviction of the two gorillas on charges of extorting money from the movie companies which are not much better, if any, than the racketeers themselves.

Not Their

Mouthpiece.

At that Mr. Padway said I had done him wrong in calling him the mouthpiece for this band of thieves. He said he wasn't their mouthpiece but represented the membership of the union. So I asked him if he ever had initiated any action to protect the workers constituting the membership from the criminals, and he said it wasn't his prerogative to initiate actions. He is a lawyer serving a client, to wit, the union and the fact that the union very plainly was an unconscionable racket infested with obvious crooks did not affect his shape as a union. I insisted that Bioff and Browne were actually the union and that in serving the union as mouthpiece he necessarily was serving as mouthpiece for these crooks, but he wouldn't have it that way.

A year ago June, Padway went into the convention of this mob in Louisville and delivered what I called a eulogy of the racketeer, Browne. Padway wouldn't agree that this was a eulogy, so I will split the difference and settle for the fact that he certainly did sing the praises of the man who had only recently given him the job of general counsel. At this very time, Bioff was in the Chicago Bridge-Well serving six months for acting as business agent for a string of streetwalkers and Browne had already announced his determination to retain Bioff as bargaining agent for the movie industry but Padway nevertheless praised Browne highly and told how he had sat in on negotiations in Hollywood with Bioff.

Afraid of Publicity. I asked him why he hadn't taken occasion to say a word to the delegates against a criminal so foul as Willie and he said such comment would have been out of line because his remarks were of a legal character. So I cracked back that his praise of Browne wasn't strictly legal business either and that if he could digress to the extent of praising George he could, with equal propriety, have digressed to the same extent in dispraise of the old brothel-keeper.

I asked him how much dough he was getting out of this union or racket, and he refused to tell me on the ground that I would print it. I said I certainly would print it and wanted it for publication or not at all, but he seemed to think the amount could be given in some uncomplimentary meaning and wouldn't tell. However, he did say that other lawyers representing the locals around the country were getting four or five times as much as he and he admitted this could be so. The unions are easy pickings for a lot of lawyers these days. Like the racketeers, lawyers have sniffed the big dough that the unions extort from the working saps and like buzzards they have got wind of the rottenness of the union racket and are flocking to get theirs.

And About Scalise. I want to tell you something else that Padway said. He said he never did sign any petition for a presidential pardon for George Scalise, another old mack which is short for marquerneau which is French for what Willie Scalise was convicted of being in Chicago. I said, "Well, you told me you did," and he said he only told me that he told a federal agent that if Scalise had gone straight all those years he ought to be let up. But he had served Scalise's union, the Building Service Workers, as special counsel and knew Scalise personally, and I say anyone who knew anything at all about Scalise should have known he was still a crook and a member of a famous old mob of dirtiest criminals in the country.

Padway is no boy. He can tell a racketeer. Moreover, I insist that Padway, himself, did tell me that he did endorse Scalise's petition and there we split on a matter of personal veracity or recollection. But what difference would that make, anyway? He heeded, too, because I said he got $1,000 from the Scalise union, or racket, for drawing up a new constitution and that the existing constitution was something very puerile. He said he got only $650 for the constitution and the remaining $350 for two other legal jobs and that the present constitution was not his work because he had never deeded his new constitution. I said, "Well, why didn't you tell me that?" He said he did but I said he lied and he didn't.

I also insist that he told me Scalise called on him and told of his earlier conviction and asked his indorsement and now Padway denies that, too.

I leave you the fact that Padway was general counsel for the Browne-Bioff union, or racket, the most vicious thing that ever happened in the labor movement in the United States and that even after Bioff had gone to jail and Browne had announced his determination to retain him in power, Padway not only stayed on as counsel for this racket masquerading as a union but he kept in meeting and praised or eulogized Browne.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

(I was sitting there trying to write a piece about Armistice Day. It would have discussed all the thoughts that were in the minds of the men who sat at that long table in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles and wrote a peace that was to set the world seething and bubbling again. It wouldn't get going. There was on my desk three requests for a reprint of another Armistice Day piece. I wrote from Paris three years ago. I had looked up an old French sweetheart for a friend. He is gone now and another war has come. There were only three requests, but it seemed easier to grant them than to be futile about the futility and irony of this Armistice Day. This is a nonsensical, true story.)

I FOUND CHARMINE Well, Charlie, I did just what you asked me to do. I found Charmaine. I walked right down the Rue Saint Honoré until I found that number and I hunted around and found the name on a brass plate on the door. Sure enough, just like you said, the French don't move much.

She's older, Charlie. You know, you told me to be sure and look her up and say hello to her. That she was as cute as a speckled pup or a little red wagon. Well, Charlie, she's a little older. I hope you get what I mean. After all, it's been a few years since the armistice and since you used to get liberty in Paris.

Yes, the café still is on the corner and they still put out the little tables and chairs. It was warm enough for that when I was there. Fact is, Charmaine and I sat in a couple of those chairs and talked about you.

You remember that day you went out to the Bois and took a basket and had a picnic? You never had told me about that. I'm sorry to tell you, but at first she didn't remember you. "Charlie," she said, "Let me see, Charlie. I think I remember him." So, she went and got a box of snapshots. Say, Charlie, how many times did you have liberty? From what you told me, I thought this Charmaine lived only for you. Well, anyhow, we sorted through a lot of war pictures and at last we found yours. Gee, you looked a bit funny, Charlie. You looked young yourself and I never would have known Charmaine was the same girl. She's fattened up some, Charlie. Of course, I know a fellow my size shouldn't talk about that, but then I remember how you used to tell me about this girl and say she wasn't any bigger than a minute. Well, Charlie, she's about 20 minutes now. But still a good guy. I liked her. She laughs a lot.

Where were we? Oh yes, out in the Bois. I mean, looking at pictures at the picnic spot in the Bois.

Gee, you were funny, Charlie! There was one picture where you were holding your head back and Charmaine was pouring wine into your mouth out of one of those long bottles. I had a great laugh over that. There was another one where you were hugging Charmaine. Who took that picture? Charmaine couldn't remember.

CHARLIE HAD CHANGED, TOO And that uniform. I don't see some franes on it and get it fixed up. Still, maybe it didn't matter. I think Charmaine really remembered you at last, but she said there were a lot of you fellows running around Paris at that time and all the girls were trying to see that the Americans had a good time.

I told her you never had forgotten her and this seemed to please her. We even dug up an old letter you'd written her from up near Reims somewhere. Gee, your French was lousy! We had a laugh over that.

She asked about you. And you, you don't look so blythe and gay and debonair any more. You've changed some, too. Come to think of it, I think Charmaine may have changed less than you. When you get all fixed up in that Legion suit don't you go thinking your old uniform would fit any more. I told Charmaine and she couldn't imagine you—the fellow in the picture—plugging away at a job. She said you always were the life of the party. She told me about the time you hired a cab and insisted on riding the horse. They must have been gay times. I told her that while you may have been able to sit there and punish a bottle of Three-Star in those days, you got silly and tried to sing when the second cocktail was passed at bridge parties today. I told her one highball after a golf game set you to singing "Sweet Adeline." She kept shaking her head.

THE YEARS GET ON The years get on, Charlie, and it's no need for me to tell you that. I need for me to tell you that it has been a bit more than 20 years since you were going out to the Bois and having wine poured into your plumbing.

And Charmaine is married and has a daughter who is about as big as a minute and as pretty as a picture. She had a look at the pictures and said, "Did that funny looking man call on you, mama?" Romance, Charlie, can take a lot of belting around in 20 years. We had a great laugh about you.

You must have changed some, too. Well, it hasn't changed with the years. It's still good. And pretty as a picture. And that soup made with leeks and potatoes? Great.

But it was a little sad, Charlie. And after seeing you in the pictures and having a look around, I didn't go looking up Marie. Al asked me to do. There is no use looking up ghosts, Charlie. You see, you still think of yourself as a gay blade who could, if he wished, have a picnic out in the Bois. And you know it would give you a cold or your legs would cramp when you tried sitting cross-legged on the ground with Charmaine feeding you chicken as she did that day. And if Charmaine did sit down she'd have to have help getting up. She's fat, Charlie. You explain to Al about Marie. Charmaine kept the pictures. I almost brought them back. But they belong in Paris. And 20 years ago. You explain to Al.

The Best Cavalry and Infantry Went Down When Napoleon Blasted Them With Cannon

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Professional men know many things that are hidden from laymen, yet all professions cling to faults and follies that are apparent to any layman who has good sense. It is the old story of parents being unable to see the faults of their own children.

When General Mitchell was hounded from the service for the crime of trying to give America an air force, nearly all interested laymen believed him in the right, and time has proved their wisdom.

Every new conflict and every new development in this war makes it increasingly clear that the issue can be determined by airplanes.

Much of the credit will be due to Americans, for they were the first to train parachute troops, the first to build dive bombers, and the first to use planes as torpedo carriers.

The awful tragedy at Crete convinced the last doubters that planes having command of the air can destroy or cripple the mightiest surface ships. Some of the great ships wounded in that battle are still in American repair yards.

The lesson was finally pounded home by the Bismarck episode. When that "unsinkable" German monster had destroyed the Hood by one lucky hit at 23,000 yards, and then slipped away in the fog, she might have reached port despite the 40-to-1 odds against her, except for the work of two planes. The first had crippled her with a torpedo; the second, a far-ranging bomber made in America, found her and reported her position. British ships sent her to the bottom, but again it was a torpedo plane that wounded her so deeply a mere cruiser could finish her.

The Germans had no faith in torpedo planes when the war began; but they were quick to learn, and now they are building them as fast as they can. And thousands of such planes, with long range and great speed, may be capable of destroying any battle fleet on the surface—as far-cruising bombers, given command of the air, could easily destroy all merchant ships.

There is as yet no protection against airplanes except a superior air force. And the planes that "shoot the war" haven't yet been built, for every model improves on the one before it and makes all others obsolete.

But if anything can be certain in this uncertain world, it is that free men can win this war only if they have the most and best bombers and combat planes and the most and best pilots. Tanks and anti-aircraft guns to fight battleships, tanks to fight tanks, and artillery to fight artillery, but still these will fail if the enemy is able to dominate the air.

Now I grant you that Hitler who threatens us all is the very worst news there could possibly be, And I'm hoping, like you, that he rides for a fall. But other things, brother, are troubling me!

For days I saved up and all fun I forego. To buy me some eats at yon grocery store. By shopping around and buying light pack I'd not see the checker take most of it back!

But, dang it! In spite of all I could do, He added my pitiful purchases quickly. And the register total said 'Eleven-O-Two'—Which is why I turned pale and felt very sickly!

Some people might shop with prudence and will, And pay "Leven-O-Two" with a five-dollar bill, But I'm just an underpaid rough-rhyming hack. And I had the poor checker put everything back!

Then I ran to the corner where Jack sells his booze. And shot the five-spot for a quart of Old Snooze. I been eatin' little and now I'll eat littler. Another good reason to hate old 'Dolph Hitler'!

Snake Eggs.

Maybe it would be a good idea to peek inside your eggs before dropping the contents into the frying pan. This item comes from the Georgia Press Association, so its authenticity is beyond the shadow of doubt. It says that down in Omega, Ga., which sounds, from its name, like the last resort, one B. W. Snellgrove found himself a magician before he realized it.

Mr. Snellgrove, it appears, cracked an egg to make cake batter—so he must be one of those husbands whose wives are always busy at the Red Cross—and produced a four-inch spotted snake. Presumably—the item is not clear—from inside the egg.

But don't let that make you abandon eggs. How many pearls do you find in a thousand oysters? If you ever opened a thousand oysters, which would be some task. I'll bet I've opened 10,000 oysters—in a fairly long lifetime—and discovered not one pearl. So I'll keep on taking chances on eggs.

Those Jaybirds.

One of the troubles of a writer is that he can't state a scientific fact without somebody bobbing up to tell him he's wrong—and proving it.

This time it is Bird Harris Porter—a Miss or Mrs., by the writing, who says my reference to jaybirds totie said to hell on Fridays is all wet. She says in verse form—that they carry sticks, which Satan uses to keep his fires burning.

I have written to the national Audubon Society about this disagreement and hope for an official verdict soon. In the meantime the jaybirds—and folk who dare to disagree with me—may keep on going wherever they go on.

One Hit, Two Errors

First, second and third requirements a city editor insists upon in a "death notice" or story about the passing of some citizen, are accuracy in names and initials.

It is never my desire to take a shot at an "opposition" newspaper. Firstly, because all the boys and girls who labor thereon are my friends—I hope; and secondly, one never knows when he may urgently need a job on said sheet.

But, just by accident, I have run across a story in a week-old issue of an evening paper, published locally, whose identity will never be revealed by me, which is unique in its inaccuracies. It concerned a Mrs. White. I think that was correct. But it said one of her brothers, Washington correspondent of said paper, is named Ralph Jones. It happened to be Smith. It said another brother, automobile dealer, is named White. It also happens to be Smith.

Oh, well, everybody has made mistakes except the Almighty. And even He makes me wonder sometimes. How about rattlesnakes, mosquitoes and people who write—with no stamp enclosed—requesting a clipping about something printed—he or she thinks—sometime in September, three years ago? Or maybe it was November.

Up in Gainesville a cat—name not learned—fell into a well. Fire department was called. Firemen used ropes, a basket and a nice, fresh hamburger without onions. Kitty responded and came up out of the well.

And then dashed across the street—and was run over and killed by a truck.

Sometimes one thinks nothing is worth while. Let's all go jump in the lake. You jump first.

Food Gain Program

Is Outlined in Floyd Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 10.—Farm operators in Floyd county have been asked to draw up a crop plan for 1942 and meetings are being held this week throughout the county to discuss the need for increased food and feed production for national defense. County Agent G. F. Wiley announces.

The schedule for meetings call for a series of conferences in the Mount Alto district today, Chulio district Tuesday, Watters district Wednesday. Meetings have already been held at Armuchee and Texas valley.

After a survey of the crop plans is made it can be determined whether Floyd will be able to meet the increases demanded in the national program, Wiley said.

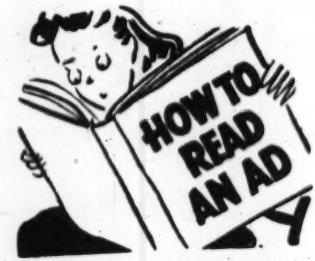

Berrien County Agent

Receives High Honor Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 10.—W. R. Tye, county agent in Berrien county at Nashville, was today designated by the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service for most outstanding leadership in 4-H Club work during 1941. As reward, Tye will receive a free trip to Chicago to attend the National County Agents' Association.

A native of Calhoun county, Tye has been county agent for the Georgia Extension Service for six years, having served in Berrien for the past three years.

By GEORGE B. ANDERSON.

"I worked my way through college," a businessman told me the other day, "by doing house-to-house selling. Getting the housewife to open the door was the great trick of our sales solicitation, and I got a bruised foot more than once when a woman banged the door on it."

"That experience makes me value newspaper advertising more than most merchants, I believe. What was my major problem in house-to-house selling is no problem at all when I advertise in a good newspaper. On a lucky day I could expect to get into half the homes where I'd rung the doorbell. Where I did get in, I was admitted grudgingly and distrustfully. I could usually tell that I was unwelcome. That's a big handicap for any salesman to overcome."

"To me, it's a real privilege to advertise in a newspaper. My sales message gets into practically every home in the community, without argument. The housewife is in a receptive mood when she reads it. I get to talk to her when she's interested in buying."

"My advertisement is a good company, too. It's surrounded by important news and entertaining editorial features. That prospective buyers of my products will see what I have to say is assured."

"I haven't bargained in. I've entered the homes of this community as an invited guest and a welcome one. People have actually paid for the privilege of reading news and advertising, my ad included."

"All I have to do is tell my story. If my product is right, and I present it in such a way that the housewife can see its merits, I can't help making sales."

Jeff Davis Park

To Be Beautified

FITZGERALD, Ga., Nov. 10.—Thomas Fleming, of the state parks division, was in conference Friday with a committee at the Jefferson Davis park, with a view of beautifying this historic spot near Irwinville.

Plans for the beautification of the park were submitted by Fleming and adopted by the committee. More than $20,000 has already been spent by the state in the erection of a monument and an attractive museum, with considerable work done by the local committee in co-operation with the WPA in making the park attractive.

The register shows more than 6,000 people visited the park last year.

NATIONALE REICHSKIRCHE.

"To gain possession of the last German soul" is the expressed purpose of the proposed Nationale Reichskirche (national church), according to the 30-point program outlined by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, "one of the chief theory makers of the Nazi party," as the Christian Science Monitor's trusted correspondent describes Dr. Rosenberg in a cable article, appearing in the Monitor of October 22, 1941, page 7.

The proposed national church will, by force, supplant all other churches now existent in Germany, according to Rosenberg. Designed along military lines, the so-called church will have as its textbook, not the Bible, but Mein Kampf. If allowed to develop, the national church of Hitler will abolish and destroy every outward manifestation of Christianity within its reach. It cannot destroy Christianity any more than Communism could destroy Christianity in Russia, or elsewhere; but that would seem to be the purpose of the movement.

I am not surprised at the announcement of the Nationale Reichskirche, for I have read Mein Kampf, and I have read all the published speeches of Hitler. It is the logical outgrowth of his plan and program for Germany and the world. I stood in the Reichstag in August, 1934, and heard Hitler in that significant pronouncement to the German people on the day that he assumed full and final power, following the funeral of Hindenburg. I shall never, to my dying day, forget his fearful earnestness, his crusading call to the people to restore Fatherland—to commit themselves, as he said he had committed himself, to that purpose, even unto death.

Thus far, he has conquered everything in Germany except Christianity. He conquered the government, the army, the press, the schools, the fraternal orders, capital, labor; but so far he has not conquered the church. He has thrown thousands of Christians in concentration camps; but led by the dauntless Niemöller, he has not been able to conquer the preachers of the Gospel of Christ. And even his Nationale Reichskirche, backed by guns and soldiers, will not be enough to conquer the souls of men made free by the redeeming grace of the Lord Jesus Christ.

I wish there were space here to outline the 30-point program of the N. R. Let me cite the second point as an example:

"The German people must not serve N. R., but N. R. serves exclusively and solely one doctrine: race and folk." (The translation here is that of the Monitor's correspondent, and I have no reason to doubt his faithfulness.)

And in the third point we read: "The activities of N. R. are limited to territorial boundaries of the Reich and its colonies."

Compare those words with the words of Jesus in John 3:16.

Wonders If Ex-President Wants Peace Favoring Hitler.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

In a previous column I criticized the peace aims of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt as a basis for transmitting later through this column some of the constructive ideas that are beginning to emerge here and elsewhere in the world.

But I pause in this discussion to inquire what are the peace aims of Mr. Hoover, and of the war-mongering appeasers around him? Following upon Mr. Lindbergh's confession that before this war began he favored an attack of Germany upon Russia, comes Mr. Hoover's blast against the administration of the subject of Finland, breaking simultaneously with a similar blast from Goebbels' propaganda department, almost as though timed to synchronize.

Hoover's statement gives Mr. Roosevelt the impression, I trust false, that he is ready to go on fighting, even if all Finnish aims are realized, and Great Britain and the United States ready to use their influence with Russia to get a guarantee of Finland's frontiers.

Hoover only wants peace when peace will assist Hitler, and wants to stop peace if peace will assist Britain and the United States.

Finland's continuance in the war, and the use of Finland as a base for Nazi military operations, tie up the port of Murmansk, which is the nearest and best route for delivering supplies to the Russians, who, whatever their social principles may be, are resisting a treacherous aggression.

The best possible policy for the Finns would be to mediate peace on the basis of their own war, and return to neutrality. The only real question is whether the Nazis would let them. The real pressure on Finland is now from the Germans. And just why Mr. Hoover should try to stop the administration from getting peace in one part of the world where it might get peace for one small nation, is beyond my powers of comprehension.

Mistake of Soviets. The Russians made a terrible mistake in attacking Finland, and put themselves in a bad moral position. Furthermore, there is no use in their saying that they attacked Finland because they feared a German aggression through Finland.

According to their own previous statements and propaganda, what they feared was a British aggression through Finland, in pursuance of the policy advocated by Mr. Lindbergh, of turning Germany loose against the west. History moves so rapidly these days that we forget last year's events. It is well, however, to remember them.

The first Finnish war followed, three months after the conclusion of the Russo-German pact and the German attack on Poland, and was precipitated by the Finnish decision to fortify the Aland islands, a proposal which was opposed by the Russians and approved by the League of Nations, and Germany. From this moment on, however, Germany consistently backed up the Russians, while the western powers all backed the Finns, without a single exception.

Role of F. D. R. Mr. Roosevelt did his diplomatic best to prevent the attack; congress voted aid to the Finns; Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, sent generous aid through the Dutch Red Cross, and an allied expeditionary force to aid the Finns was prevented by Sweden, who, acting under German pressure, refused to allow the transit of such a force through Sweden.

Time and again the German press justified the Soviet action. On December 3, 1939, the Berlin Boersen Zeitung took the lead in whitewashing Russia and pinning full responsibility for the Russian-Finnish war on Britain. It said, "Russia has just as much right as any other nation to safeguard herself strategically and politically against unforeseen developments." It said, "Russia's attitude is morally more decent than Britain's." It attacked the Swedish government also.

And, the Essener Nationalzeitung said, "By carefully refraining from inciting Finland to resistance against Russia, Germany has done Finland a great service. Now, however, with Russia's great power, it is natural that she should burst her fetters."

Finland was chided in this same paper for not having followed the policy of the Baltic states of compliance to Russia without resistance.

Norway, Sweden Warned. On December 7, the German radio warned Norway and Sweden not to let British and French arms pass over their territories to Finland, and on December 11, the German press again attacked the Finnish resistance. On December 11, Germany officially denied that she was aiding Finland, scotching a persistent rumor. Again on January 6, the German press warned Sweden and Norway not to allow aid to pass to Finland. Peace came in March—negotiated peace favored by the Germans.

But, there is direct evidence of Germany's connivance in the first Russo-Finnish war. The evidence is in the speech of Adolf Hitler, made July 20, 1940, four months after the conclusion of the first Russo-Finnish war. In that speech Hitler said:

"A veritable wandering Jew

Famous French Dressmakers Acting for Nazis, Refugee Says

(A Frenchman recently arrived in New York—his name must be withheld because of his relations still living in France—discloses hitherto untold details about the Nazis' conduct in Paris and the French resistance to them.)

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.
(North American Newspaper Alliance.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—It would be interesting to find out what the large number of Europeans with slightly German accents, and wholly Germanic sympathies, are now doing in the United States. The speaker is a Frenchman who recently fled from Nazi-occupied France for permanent residence in this hospitable country.

Some of the faces of the supposed refugees and European business people are painfully familiar to my informant.

"I saw them in France just before May, 1940. And I've seen them here recently. They are serving the Nazi government."

Among them is a world-famous Parisian dressmaker, feminine gender. "To explain the position of this woman," says the Frenchman, "I must explain the present situation of the French dress industry. After the German invasion most of the big French fashion houses were dead. This caused enormous unemployment. A committee was set up, headed by Lucien Lelong, to discuss questions with the German government and Vichy.

"In June, 1941, all clothes in France were rationed. Everyone received 30 tickets, to last until January, 1942. A suit, in the ordinary shops, takes from 14 to 15 coupons. But in order to keep the big dress houses going—and at the moment these still retain 30 per cent of their employees—it was decided that customers patronizing shops like Lelong, Schiaparelli, Patou, Worth and Maggy Rouff should only give about six coupons for a suit. In this way they could buy more and give employment to more people."

The system was working well, in spite of a certain cry of "privileges for the rich," when the dressmaker mentioned above collected for herself a clientele of wealthy wives of German officers. Mrs. Hermann Goering was and is a regular buyer at this swank dress salon.

"Because of her German connection," said my informant, "this dressmaker was allowed much more than her quota of materials, etc., and is able to go in and out of France as she pleases. A year ago she spent several months in the United States, presumably on dressmaking business, but perhaps to get information about this country which she passes on to the Germans. She had no difficulty in leaving America to return to France. And back in Paris she called the Americans and the British every harsh thing she could think of.

"You can imagine my surprise, on arriving here a few weeks ago, to find this dressmaker in New York. She is now on her way to South America, maybe to preach the doctrine of collaboration with Germany. Her exit permit from France was procured for her by Mrs. Goering!"

Skirt Lengths Depend on Leg—Schiaparelli

Matter for Individual To Decide, Fashion Dictator Says.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 10.—(INS) The length of the skirt is something for women to decide individually for themselves, rather than for the fashion dictator to dictate, in the opinion of Elsa Schiaparelli, herself a top fashion dictator.

"The real answer always depends on 'How good is the lady's leg?'" she declared today en route back to New York after a 10-week business tour of South America. She did generalize, however, to the extent of saying that skirts will not be longer this year.

Fayette Draft Board

Has Army Interest

FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 10. Members of the draft board of Fayette county have an special interest in Army affairs. Mrs. L. A. Ingram, clerk, has a son in the Army, Lieutenant L. A. Ingram Jr., field artillery, at Fort Blanding, Colonel Lester Dickson, appeal agent, has two sons in the Army, Marshall W. Dickson, lieutenant, stationed at Fort Benning, and Pope Dickson, stationed at Fort McPherson.

Fred Austin, board member, has a nephew in the Army in Virginia, this young man having resided with him before entering the service, having enlisted, and R. H. Huddleston, board member, has a son in Class 1-A; F. A. Sams, recently resigned as appeal agent, was a captain in the World War, and holds the Purple Heart decoration.

Extension Service Aids Older Youths

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 10.—Georgia's older rural boys and girls are being helped to find stability on the farm and elsewhere through a constructive program of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service.

Some 6,000 older rural boys and girls, chiefly between the ages of 18 and 24, received direct assistance last year from county and home demonstration agent workers in co-operation with the 4-H club department. More than 700 of this group were organized into self-functioning older rural youth organizations, the most progressive counties being Bulloch, Cobb, Webster, Walker, Towns and Oconee.

In addition, a number of former 4-H Club members are continuing their training through participation in college 4-H clubs. At the University of Georgia, some 150 older farm boys and girls are enrolled in the organization, while the Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College at Tifton has 100 members. Georgia Southern College at Americus, 50, and Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, 50.

Co-operative homes at the University are also providing extensive training for former farm boys and girls. Enrollment this year in five homes totals 136. G. V. Cunningham, state 4-H club leader, reports.

among . . . hopes is the possibility of a fresh estrangement between Germany and Russia. German and Russian relations have been finally established . . . Britain and France continually credited Germany with the desire to conquer territory which lay outside the sphere of German interests. It was said at one time that Germany . . . wanted to jostle the Ukraine, again that she intended to invade Finland, yet again that she had threatened Rumania . . . Germany has taken no steps that would lead her to exceed the limits of her sphere of interests, nor has Russia done anything of the kind."

Here is a clear justification in Hitler's own words of the Russian war against Finland. This is what Hitler said in 1940. But, on November 4, 1941—just the other day—a Berlin spokesman, furious with the American President for proposing to mediate peace between Russia and Finland, said that Germany "had been compelled to stand by with a bleeding heart during the first Russo-Finnish war because preoccupation in the west prevented Germany from assisting Finland." It was also the only thing that prevented Germany from attacking Russia, whom she was supporting in the Finnish war a year before!

Great Britain and the United States must try to use the port of Murmansk, and, unlike the Nazis, who care exactly as much for Finland as they do for Rumania, for instance, Britain and the United States do not wish to fight Finns. Mr. Hoover knows enough about Finland to know that the continuance of this war is disastrous to that little country that already has been bled white.

(Miss Thompson will speak here November 18 at the city auditorium.)

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks puny.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up."

Get a package today. Take as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 10c and 25c.

Charity Groups' Milk Pleas To Be Heard Today

Ruling Also Expected on Formation of Clubs by Housewives.

Pleas for cheaper milk for numerous Atlanta charitable organizations will be taken up by the State Milk Control Board when it meets at 10 o'clock this morning in the new state office building.

Georgia Tech and Crawford W. Long hospital are asking that they be considered as charitable institutions, while the Disabled American Veterans of the World War are calling on the board to make it possible for low-income families to buy milk. The Travelers Aid Society likewise has made application for a charitable status.

Other business to come before the group will be a ruling on whether Atlanta housewives will be allowed to form milk clubs and purchase their supply for 11 cents per quart. Price adjustments will be made for the Perry, Waynesboro, Thomaston, Gainesville, Griffin, Fort Valley and Tifton milk sheds. The Perry, Waynesboro and Thomaston sheds are new.

John T. Whitaker To Talk at Emory

John T. Whitaker, for the past 10 years foreign correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune and since 1938 for the Chicago Daily News, will speak at Emory University on "Who's Winning the War" at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night, November 20, it was announced yesterday.

A native of Tennessee, he graduated from the University of the South in 1927.

During the present war he made his headquarters in Rome until his expulsion from the Italian capital several months ago. Recently he has been stationed in Lisbon, Portugal.

His appearance will be under the auspices of the Student Lecture Association. Tickets are on sale at Rich's and Davison-Faxon's.

86th Birthday Here For 'Uncle Heinie'

John Henry Henika, "Uncle Heinie" to thousands of Georgia Tech students and alumni, is celebrating another birthday today—his 86th—and still going strong.

"I'm feeling about as fine as I ever did," he declared yesterday as students in his wood-working shop gathered around to congratulate him. "Uncle Heinie" had a siege of illness and returned to Tech last May after 14 months' layoff.

How will he spend the day? He'll be up at 6 o'clock, he said, spend the day in the shop, and at 5 o'clock, as usual, will return to his home at 268 Ponce de Leon avenue.

"Uncle Heinie" won't admit that he expects to live to be 120, but he quotes the Bible to show that the Lord's idea of the life span of a man is 120 years. "The Lord kept me alive all these years, and when he is ready for me to go, He will stop the clock," he said.

150 Watt Limit For Marquees, OPM Orders

Ruling To Affect Hotels, Movies in 7 Southeastern States.

The Office of Production Management yesterday restricted marquee lighting for theaters, movie houses and hotels in seven southeastern states to 150 watts for each marquee.

Officials said the ruling applies to the blackout area set out in the OPM order limiting non-essential lighting. It includes Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, the Carolinas, eastern Mississippi and northwest Florida.

In a telegram to Utilities Chief J. A. Krug of the OPM power branch said the restriction because effective immediately and immediately to notify us immediately of any violation and warn customer that his service will be discontinued if violation is not stopped.

At the same time, Krug notified utilities in the power shortage area to advise customers to discuss with utilities rather than the OPM problems encountered in complying with the limitation order affecting users of more than 10,000 kilowatt hours monthly.

He added, that customers might go direct to the OPM if they prefer, but the former procedure would expedite action.

Two Counties Report Shortage in Labor

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. RICHLAND, Ga., Nov. 10.—Because of the extreme labor shortage on farms, laborers going to sawmills and public industries, while many others are going from the farms to the Army and Navy, Stewart and Webster county farmers are making plans for tractor farming in 1942.

The labor shortage in this section of the state is such that farmers can hardly get enough labor to operate the peanut pickers, or to harvest potatoes and sugarcane crops this fall, and with a consequent drainage upon the labor supply for the Army, the farm problem will be one of the most difficult problems for the farmers in 1942, leaders state.

Two Brothers Conduct Services at Valdosta

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—Two patriotic and military services were held Sunday at the First Presbyterian church in this city, two brothers, officers in the United States Army, conducting both services.

Lieutenant Colonel Ryan F. Wood, of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, former pastor of the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, of Tampa, was the morning speaker, and his brother, Captain David Lorenza Wood, former pastor of the Presbyterian church at Fernandina, Fla., preached Sunday evening.

While here they were guests of their sisters, Mrs. W. T. Sims and Miss Dora Wood. Captain Wood was a member of the First Presbyterian church in Valdosta when he began studying for the ministry.

Longshoremen Strike Has Been Averted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP) Conciliation service officials said today that a strike of 2,000 AFL longshoremen in southeastern states, scheduled for midnight tonight, has been averted as the result of conference held here today.

No details of the agreement were announced pending presentation of the terms to the workers, but it was understood that substantial wage agreements had been agreed to by the three shipping companies involved.

The companies are the Straitsen Shipping Company, McGiffin and Company, and the Carolina Shipping Company.

Maria Montez, Film Star, Types Predatory Males for Women

By HAROLD MARTIN. Miss Maria Montez, the sultry-eyed, smoky-voiced young lady whom Universal pictures is rapidly making into a star, has written a book.

It is a book, Miss Montez believes, which will fill a long-felt need. In fact, it should become a sort of must on the reading list of all young ladies who now and then run into situations where they don't know what move to make next.

It is also a book which will probably cause the predatory young males of this country to scream loudly in anguish and buy up all available copies to make a bonfire out of them.

For, it seems, Miss Montez has made quite a profound study of the tactics of the predatory male, and she has found, upon analysis, that his varying techniques can be pretty well set down under 10 headings.

There is the romantic type who gazes soulfully into your eyes and says "Ah." There is the big brotherly type, who will protect you from the cruel world. There is the gay, skylarking type—he's probably the most dangerous. Miss Montez thinks. His mind seems so far removed from romance, and it is only later that you realize that, when he tells a funny story he does not slap his own leg in his glee—he slaps yours.

'Miss Poppy' Helps Observance Here

Miss Poppy Bloodworth, 19, a sophomore who was born on Armistice Day, was the central figure at the Armistice Day exercises held yesterday at Atlanta Junior College, 160 Luckie street. Miss Molina Michael, of Athens, whose suggestion for a national Poppy Day was adopted at the national convention of the American Legion in 1920, came here to greet Miss Bloodworth.

Poppy Bloodworth is the daughter of Major J. V. C. Bloodworth, who assisted in the adoption of Poppy Day by the Georgia Department of the American Legion in 1920, and took Miss Michael's resolution for national observance of the day to the national Legion convention.

Defense Train To Visit Atlanta December 12

Three defense preparedness trains, the Red, White and Blue Specials, left Washington yesterday to carry the defense program to small businessmen in 79 American cities, including Atlanta. Train No. 1, which will travel the eastern seaboard, will visit Atlanta December 12 and Macon December 13.

The trains have been sent out by OPM's contract division, to contact thousands of small manufacturers in an effort to aid them in converting their factories for defense production. Each train carries 16 Army officers, eight Navy officers, a Maritime Commission representative, representatives of the treasury, the OPM information division and the railroads.

'Swamp Water' Opens Run at Roxy Today

Picture Built on Bell's Story of Okefenokee Section.

"Swamp Water," the picture built from Vereen Bell's story of the Okefenokee swamp, starts today at the Roxy theater.

Much of the movie was shot in the swamp itself, with natives of the district joining the professionals in the cast include Walter Huston as old Thursday Ragan; Walter Brennan, as the swamp-hiding murderer; Dana Andrews, as the young hero of the story, and Ann Baxter, as the love interest. "Swamp Water" had its premier in Waycross, the gateway to the swamp, a week or so ago. The film was shown in two theaters simultaneously.

Silas Green Show Opens Thursday

The hottest, fastest, best-costumed and oldest all-Negro show on the road today, the Original Silas Green from New Orleans is scheduled to play Thursday night in the municipal auditorium. Holding the lead role as Silas Green, is Ford Wiggins, who for 33 continuous years has portrayed this hilarious blackface character. "Believe-it-or-not" Ripley last summer honored Wiggins by calling him the oldest comedian on the American stage today.

Wiggins is backed by many of the biggest names in Negro showdom. Johnny Huggins, pantomime artist; the Edwards Sisters, whose dancing has been the toast of Parisian night spots; the famed Al Gaines trio, only Negro acrobats on the American stage; Kid Lips Hackett, drummer; Atlanta's own comedian, Dinah Scott as "Lilas Bean"; Judy Moody and Jell-Smith, vocal duo, and S. H. Dudley Jr.

Germans Stopped Before Sevastopol, Hit at Leningrad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

It appeared last night that Hitler was again stressing his offensives upon Moscow and Leningrad, where earlier he had seemingly accepted the necessity of sitting down for the winter, and that in the Crimea the Germans were being beaten off along the approaches to Sevastopol.

The Soviet command's communique for early today did not mention the Leningrad action, but told of "particularly fierce" fighting about Tula, 100 miles to the south of the capital, as well as in the Crimea.

Whether this new and strengthened German effort at the north and center really had its ostensible purpose — the capture of both cities — was problematical, for sudden shifts of the center of pressure are not new to the German command.

Shock Troops Called.

At all events, however, the Leningrad thrust at least seemed completely in earnest for it was reported in London that 60,000 fresh Nazi shock troops had gone into the Leningrad line, many of them operating in Finnish-held areas above the city, and speculation arose that the Germans were trying hard for a decision against the possibility of a separate Finnish peace with Russia.

Berlin claimed that German tanks and infantry had occupied the highway and railway junction of Tikhvin, 110 miles southeast of Leningrad, and had cut a secondary rail connection with Moscow.

On the Leningrad front generally it was asserted that 20,000 Red prisoners had been taken in the last three weeks, thus bringing to 3,632,000 the grand total claimed to be in hand from all fronts.

Russian sources put German casualties about Leningrad at 350,000. In the Crimea, official German news dispatches acknowledged that heavy Russian counterattacks described as "desperate" had temporarily halted the Nazi movement on Sevastopol, but it was insisted that the Soviet forces subsequently had been thrown back beyond their original positions.

There was speculation in Berlin, although nothing stronger, that German columns were within 12 miles of Sevastopol. Nothing was said yesterday as to their position on the Kerch, on the northeastern extremity of the Crimean peninsula facing the Caucasus.

Meanwhile, British naval officers in Egypt reported that two Italian convoys destroyed over the weekend in spectacular British naval action had been carrying thousands of Axis troops to Italian Libya.

In action unconnected with all this, the loss of the legendary British destroyer Cossack, a 1,870-tonner that had been a terror to the Nazis, was acknowledged in London. Where she was sunk was not stated; the Germans had said Saturday, however, that a British destroyer had been sunk off Aberdeen, Scotland.

The Cossack drove the German prison ship Altmark into a Norwegian fjord on February 16, 1940, and rescued her British prisoners; she was heavily in action at Narvik; she helped sink the German battleship Bismarck.

Bill To Make Unions Submit Audits Offered

Bridges Says Act Will Bring Democracy To Labor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Calling it a bill "to bring democracy to labor organizations," Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, introduced legislation today to require unions to register with the government and make annual statements regarding their finances and activities.

The measure would require that strike votes and the election of union officers be conducted by secret ballot. NLRB officers would supervise strike votes.

Saying his bill would "discourage or prevent fraudulent strikes and strikes in defiance of the will of (union) members," Bridges told the senate he hoped congress would act promptly in an effort to curtail defense strikes and would not wait "for the President to take the initiative."

Papers Inspired Florida Attack, Governor Says

Constitution, Journal Hiding Cocking Evidence, He Asserts.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Governor accused the Atlanta daily newspapers yesterday of inspiring University of Florida students to inform him that he was unwelcome at the Jacksonville football game at Jacksonville last Saturday.

In a formal statement, the Governor also charged The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal with trying to hide the evidence he had accumulated in support of his charges against Dr. Walter D. Cocking, ousted dean of the College of Education at the University of Georgia.

"They knew," said the Governor, referring to the two papers, "that the only way to hide this evidence is for them to play politics about it and accuse Talmadge of playing politics."

After issuing his statement, the Governor snapped, "I'm going to bring this thing to a head. If it takes politics to keep down education of the races, I'm going to play politics."

The Governor had accused Cocking of advocating racial education. The ousting of the dean and other state educators by a revamped Board of Regents brought charges of political interference in the 16-college state university system.

When the Governor went to Jacksonville Saturday, a letter signed by John Cotton Brown, editor of the Alligator, University of Florida student newspaper, was presented to him. This informed the Governor that he was unwelcome because he had "shown no sympathy or regard for the university of your state."

Students Apologize. Tonight a group of University of Florida student officials sent the Governor a telegram apologizing for Brown's letter.

Girls' High Times Wins Top Award in Contest

The Girls' High Times, published by the students of Girls' High school, Atlanta, was announced yesterday as winner of a first-place award in the Southern Interscholastic Press Association newspaper contest, Class A, for 1941.

Fla., president of the University of Florida student body; Bert Hunnicutt, of Ocala, Fla., managing editor of the Alligator; Ralph Turlington, of Gainesville, Fla., business manager of the Alligator; and Holmes Alexander, of Chattahoochee, Fla., sports editor of the student newspaper, telegraphed the Governor:

"John Cotton Brown had no authority to speak for the University of Florida as he did last Saturday and does not represent the opinion of the student body nor the Alligator staff. We offer our personal apologies for this breach of hospitality."

The Governor asserted in his statement that he had unsuccessfully tried to get the Atlanta papers to publish "the true facts" relating to the ousting of Cocking. With his statement he turned over his principal evidence to representatives of the newspapers.

If they decline to publish them, he said, he would pay for their printing in a full-page advertisement in both papers.

The Governor telephoned two officials of the papers. Shortly thereafter, advertising representatives appeared in his office. The Governor said he understood that the papers would not carry his statement and evidence as news.

After signing checks to pay for the advertisement, the Governor declared, "There ain't nobody crawling on their belly." Apparently he alluded to the statement of Regent Chairman Sandy Beaver that he was willing to crawl on his belly if necessary to save the accredited standings of the state colleges.

Beaver made his statement last week while a committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, official accrediting agency, conducted an investigation of the dismissals of the Georgia educators.

A statement submitted to the committee by Beaver and other regents asserted they did not believe there was any appreciable effort to achieve racial co-education in Georgia.

"I'll bet a thousand dollars nobody believes that," said Sandy Beaver," the Governor said. Officials of The Constitution and the Journal made no immediate comment on the Governor's statement.

GOVERNOR WANTED WHOLE TRANSCRIPT PRINTED. The latest evidence on Dr. Walter D. Cocking referred to by the Governor consisted of excerpts from minutes of an education faculty meeting at the University of Georgia.

These excerpts were passed out at the last meeting of the Board of Regents with specific instructions from the chief executive that the whole transcript be printed or none at all.

In the minutes Dr. Cocking was quoted as saying it would be a good idea for two Negroes to work for Negro education over the state and be under the Board of Regents, with no administrative duties whatsoever. Dr. Cocking also was quoted as recommending that the Negro schools have representation on the Board of Regents.

Friends of the Governor pointed out at the time that these recommendations were nothing more than an effort to integrate the Negro education program, but the Governor placed a different interpretation on them.

The affidavits of Mrs. Sylla Hamilton, who was the principal witness against Dr. Cocking, have been printed in full in The Constitution.

State Baptists Present Auto To Dr. Merritt

Secretary Is Honored on Eve of Opening of Annual Parley.

Georgia Baptists last night honored Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the State Baptist Convention at a testimonial banquet.

Three hundred representatives of the church attended the banquet and presented Dr. Merritt with an automobile in appreciation for his services as executive secretary. He also was presented with a book of letters of appreciation from ministers all over the state.

Dr. Merritt is expected to be re-elected during the annual convention which starts today. Sessions of the 120th annual meeting will continue three days.

An account of the fund-raising campaign for the convention's five educational institutions will be among principal items of business on the program. The convention also is expected to consider a proposal for establishing an orphan's home in south Georgia. Baptists have operated an orphan's home in Hapeville for many years.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, of the First Baptist church and convention president, will deliver his address today. Dr. O. M. Seigler, of Canton, will give the convention sermon.

Dr. Merritt resigned as cashier of a Gainesville bank to accept a position with the convention's Sunday school department in 1920. He later served as business manager of the Christian Index.

Scouts 'Camp Out' In Cold Weather

The wind blew cold and the thermometer showed freezing but 425 Atlanta Boy Scouts camped out at the Bert Adams camp last week and lived comfortably. Scout headquarters announced yesterday.

Accompanied by patrol leaders, the boys in 68 patrols from 40 troops erected their own shelters, cooked their own food, and, according to their leaders, "put on a surprisingly adequate demonstration of their ability to 'Be Prepared' and to live comfortably in the out-of-doors despite adverse weather conditions." The Scouts were judged on their camping ability and awards will be given them in December.

Ramspeck Will Address Women Democrats Here

As an introduction to a program of study on America's foreign policy, Congressman Robert Ramspeck will speak on national defense at a meeting of the women's division of Fulton County Democrats at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel, it was announced yesterday.

Co-operating with women Democrats of the nation, the Fulton county group later will organize a program which will consider international relations, hemispheric solidarity, defense production and civilian defense.

Fence Now Population Center

CARLISLE, Ind., Nov. 10.—(AP) The new center of population of the United States is a fence post alongside a blacktop road two miles southeast of this southwestern Indiana village.

It's a corner post, with a winter wheat field on one side and a bluegrass pasture, complete with cows, horses and two mules, on the other. Across the road is a corn field.

The new population center, decided by the Census Bureau at Washington, is in a region of rich, black farms at the edge of Indiana and Kentucky. Most of the residents of Carlisle and the surrounding rural areas are natives. Carlisle was founded in 1815.

Owen W. Collins and his wife live on a farm nearest the new center and operate a 225-acre farm on land which has been in the Collins family for three generations. Collins said "nothing very exciting ever happens around here," and "so far as I know there never even has been an automobile accident beside that fence post."

Carlisle depends almost exclusively on agriculture to feed its 800 residents. The only industry is a three-man manufacturing plant.

The new population center, as decided by the Census Bureau, is not the middle point from which an approximately equal number of people live in each direction. The selection was made by picking the spot on which the map of the United States could be balanced on the point of a pin if every living person had the same weight. Under this formula — because of the fulcrum and lever principle — one inhabitant of a state far away from the center in one direction might offset two or more people living closer to the center in the opposite direction.

The new center is about 13 miles west and about 7.9 miles south of where it was in 1930 and about 602 miles west and 22.5 miles south of the center determined in the first American census in 1790.

Baptist Conventionalities

Promptly at 10 o'clock this morning, Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, 14th president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, will raise the historic gavel, rap three times, and say: "The 120th annual session of the convention will be in order." Donald Winters will open the stops on the big organ, and Robert Guy will announce the opening hymn, and the thousand or so messengers will stand to their feet to sing George Keith's "How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord, Is Laid for Your Faith, In His Excellent Word."

Dr. B. D. Ragsdale, 15th secretary of the convention, will announce the enrollment and move that all duly elected messengers present shall constitute the 120th annual session of the convention, and the convention will then proceed in its due and ancient form of selecting its officers, announcing its committees, and so forth and so on. After which Dr. Fuller will deliver the presidential address. And the morning session will come to its climax with the sermon, delivered by Dr. O. M. Seigler, of Canton.

Highlight of the afternoon session today will be the address by Dr. F. W. Boatwright, president of the University of Richmond, Baptist school for men in Virginia. Dr. Boatwright has been president of this widely known Baptist institution since 1935, which would indicate that he ought to be well qualified to discuss the engaging theme of Christian education. His address will follow the report of the committee on Christian education, offered by Dr. M. A. Cooper, of Atlanta.

Georgia Baptists have been in the field of Christian education since 1833, when Jesse Mercer persuaded Mrs. Mercer to give a large sum of money left her by her first husband, a Jew, for the establishment of a college for the training of ministers. The college was located at Penfield, in Greene county. It was moved to Macon in 1871. Bessie Tift College, located at Forsyth; Shorter College, located at Rome; Norman Junior College, located at Norman Park, and Heston-Parker Junior College, located at Mount Vernon, are the other institutions forming the Georgia Baptist convention's program of education.

The night session today will be devoted to state missions, with Dr. A. B. Hawkes, of Thomaston, reading the report, and Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary-treasurer of the convention, directing the discussion, which will include the work of the women, the Sunday school, the Baptist Training Union, the Baptist Student Union, the Baptist Book Store, the department of evangelism, and so forth.

There are 2,428 churches affiliated with the Georgia Baptist convention, with a total membership of 520,546. (Figures taken from the 1940 yearbook.) There were 22,427 baptisms reported in 1940. Total gifts reported for all purposes in 1940 amounted to $3,468,583.40. Dr. Merritt said gifts through the first 10 months of 1941 indicate a substantial increase for this year. No report can yet be made on final figures for the year, either in baptisms or gifts.

There are approximately 550,000 Negro Baptists in Georgia, which means that when you add them all up, you have well beyond a million Baptists in this state, or approximately one-third of the total population. And since Baptists do not practice infant baptism, which means that only those who voluntarily do so are eligible for membership in a Baptist church, it will be seen that the above figures represent only those who have, of their own free will and accord, identified themselves with the denomination.

THRILLING JUMP—This swell action shot shows one of the highlights of the big rodeo now appearing at Ponce de Leon park for the benefit of the Tallulah Falls school. Billy Keene, who is some rider, is jumping his two horses over Austin Abbott's automobile while standing up with one foot on each horse. And he doesn't do it with mirrors, either. It looked like he wasn't going to make it last night, but he did.

Cow Punchers Stir Up Dust At Ball Park

Vicious Steers, Horses Help Make Rodeo Jam-Up Show.

By FRANK DRAKE.

The 10-gallon hat boys and girls from the wild and woolly west moved into Ponce de Leon park last night for the benefit of the Tallulah Falls school and thanks to the help of some vicious steers and horses with exploding dynamite for muscles, they put on a jam-up, good show.

It was colorful. It was unusual for these parts. And it was thrilling and chilling. The weather furnished the latter. When you go out to see it tonight or any night through Friday, or the matinee Friday afternoon, take along a couple of saddle blankets. They sure will help.

Good Cause, Too.

The rodeo—pronounced ro-deo and not ro-day-o by the announcers no matter what your opinion might be—is being sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle for the Tallulah Falls School and the cause is as good as the show. The young matrons are giving the cash proceeds they get to the school but they are remembering another good cause along with it. A special section is reserved for the Thursday night performance for service men in uniform, and admission that night is free to them.

Cowboys and girls raised so much dust last night bulldozing steers, riding wild horses and Brahma steers to the accompaniment of "Yippeechee!" that you could just smell a good Zane Grey book in the air.

What It's Like.

All these things—cowboys and gals of Atlanta who have pored through volume after volume of the shoot-em-ups will enjoy the reckless abandon and daring of these performers, who show you what the rodeos of the old west are really like. And they'll like the special features, too.

Like, for instance, when Billy Keene stands upright aboard two streaks of lightning he calls horses and jumps them over a full-sized automobile—and doesn't fall off doing it.

Or, the rope tricks of a dozen colorfully-clad men and girls who can twirl a lasso around anything slower than a snail.

Competitions Held.

Riders competed for prizes in the Brahma steer and wild horse competitions and a dozen or more cowboys ate a good deal of Earl Mann's carefully manicured grass. These rounds were awarded to the horses and riders.

Opening with a gala parade, in which Mayor LeCraw, big baited and be-chapped, took part, the rodeo proved entertaining to the several thousands of overcoated Atlantans there for the first night.

It's a different show each night, but don't forget your heating pads.

Cave Spring Graduate

Succumbs in Tennessee

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
CAVE SPRING, Ga., Nov. 10.—Mrs. Emma Edwards Morris, 84, died in Knoxville, Tenn., last week from injuries received in a fall. She was well known here, having been educated here at the Georgia School for the Deaf and on the day of her graduation, was married to Henry Steven Morris, the young foreman of the school's shoe shop.

Those present at the wedding in June 1878, included Governor Alfred H. Colquhoun and Mayor Angier, of Atlanta.

Joseph Berry Edwards, father of Mrs. Morris, was one of the earliest instructors of the deaf in Georgia, being a faculty member before the school was moved from the original log cabin which formed a part of the Academy in 1846. Many other members of the Morris family have also been teachers at the Cave Spring school.

AAA Mattress Project

Reopened at Bleckley

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
COCHESTER, N. C., Nov. 10.—County Agent Leo H. Mallard has reopened the mattress project in Bleckley county which has been closed since July on account of lack of materials. Mallard says there were 538 mattresses made under the first project in 1941 for the low-income family group. Under the second project, the AAA county committee approved 1,997 mattresses and of this number 1,459 mattresses were made before the material gave out.

Mallard has secured an additional allotment of 62 bales of cotton and four bales of ticking. This material is sufficient to make approximately 600 mattresses.

NEW INDUSTRIAL CHEMICALS

—Two new industrial chemicals—sulfamic acid and ammonium sulfamate—costly laboratory curiosities three years ago with few known practical uses, are now in tonnage production at du Pont's recently completed Grasselli, N. J. plant from which rising commercial demand will be met with rapid production, announced this month ranging up to 50 per cent.

Formerly produced on pilot plant scale, sulfamic acid and ammonium sulfamate proved themselves valuable in many industrial processes. An interesting application of the latter chemical has been in its wide adoption as a fire retardant in textiles, insulation products and paper. While flammable material treated with ammonium sulfamate will char upon contact with flame, it will not blaze. Thus the treated material will not support fire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The bond market drifted irregularly lower today as selling persisted in the rails and a group of Japanese bonds wilted 2 to 3 points.

Threat of the railroad unions to strike early in December unless they get more wages than was recommended by the government-sponsored board in its report a week ago remained the principal cause for backwardness in the group.

Only a few Japanese bonds appeared but buyers were scarce. Continued uneasiness over the war question in the Far East was held responsible.

United States Government bonds were generally ahead small sum on both the stock exchange and over the counter.

"At this point, open throttle slowly and engage the clutch!"

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The 17th bombardment group at Augusta, Ga., will be strengthened by the addition of 14 North American B-25 medium bombers, now winging their way across the continent.

Newly assigned to the Army air service, the ships left yesterday at one-minute intervals under the command of Major John J. O'Hara. Twenty-eight officers and 14 sergeants are participating in the flight.

The 17th bombardment group is from Pendleton, Ore., and at present participating in southeastern maneuvers.

NINE GENERALS GET ASSIGNMENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Nine brigadier generals, including several recently promoted, were assigned by the War Department to new commands today. They were:

Brigadier General Paul J. Mueller to be chief of staff of Second Army, Memphis.

Brigadier General Dale D. Hinman, now on duty with the organized reserves at Norfolk, to command the 38th Coast Artillery Brigade, Camp Stewart, Ga.

Brigadier General Ambrose R. Emery, to command Infantry Replacement Training Center, Camp Wheeler, Ga.

Brigadier General Otto F. Lange, to command Infantry Replacement Training Center, Camp Crowder, Mo.

Brigadier General Thompson Lawrence, to command Armored Force Replacement Training Center, Fort Knox, Ky.

Brigadier General Vincent Meyer, to command the 18th Field Artillery Brigade, Fort Sill, Okla.

Brigadier General Edwin P. Parker Jr., to command Field Artillery Replacement Training Center, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Brigadier General David P. Hardy, transferred from Alaska to command Camp Pendleton, Va.

Brigadier General Albert E. Brown, from War Department general staff to 7th Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Cal., effective November 15.

SIX NEW CHAPELS AT CAMP WHEELER

CAMP WHEELER, Ga., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Soldiers at this United States Army reservation now have their choice of six new chapels in which to attend religious services. The buildings, costing $120,000, were dedicated yesterday and formally presented to the camp by Lieutenant Colonel A. R. Wright, quartermaster in charge. Commanding Officer Brigadier General A. R. Emery received them.

Clergymen participating in the dedication were Dr. Albert Grady Harris, president of the Macon Ministers' Association; John T. Axton, Fourth Corps Area chaplain, and the Rt. Rev. T. James McNamara, representing Bishop O'Hara of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese.

PERSONALS

Private Adolphus Y. Lester, of Atlanta, now stationed with the 47th Bombardment Squadron, 41st Bomb Group, at the Tucson, Ariz., air base, has been sent to the Air Corps Technical School, Chanute Field, Ill., for a course of instruction as propeller specialist. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Lester and enlisted here November 14, 1940.

Herman E. Cole, son of Samuel Cole, of Villa Rica, Ga., has been promoted to the grade of corporal at Turner Field, Albany. He is a member of the 95th School Squadron, Army Air Corps.

Marvin Dean Crouch, son of Mrs. Fannie Crouch, of Brookhaven, Ga., a member of the 557th School Squadron, Air Corps, Turner Field, has been promoted to corporal.

Preston E. Thornburg, son of Mrs. Mildred M. Thornburg, of 670 Grady place, Atlanta, has been promoted to corporal at Turner Field. He is with the 557th School Squadron.

William Lamar Martin, son of Mrs. Madalene Martin, Route No. 1,

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonsful in a half glass of milk. Costs but little. Try a bottle, it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by drug stores everywhere.—(adv.)

Iron City, Ga., is now a staff sergeant at Turner Field. His promotion has just been announced. Sergeant Martin is a member of the 94th School Squadron, Air Corps.

Charles C. Lamb, of Savannah, is one of the 138 new second lieutenants who received their wings at Turner Field, Albany, last week, and assigned to Air Corps and Combat Command stations throughout the country. Lieutenant Lamb is assigned to his advanced training station, Turner Field.

Leaguers Work for Follies ---Even on Trips to New York

By SALLY FORTH.

WHEN THE JUNIOR LEAGUE attempts anything as big as its Silver Jubilee Follies, it really needs a full-time New York representative, because so many of the details in connection with the event are planned and executed there. But in the absence of a representative up there working out large-scale plans, specific chores are assigned to every member going to New York for a brief holiday. Anne Alston (Mrs. Jack) Glenn, who is chairman of the Hellzapoppin' Cabaret, and Vaughn Nixon (Mrs. Malon) Courts leave Thursday and their assignment on the trip is to arrange for some special favors to be presented at the cabaret and to convey to Olsen and Johnson the very special thanks of the Atlanta League for allowing the use of their Hellzapoppin' idea for the elaborate after-premiere cabaret.

Frances Weinman Latimer, a former star of Junior League Follies, who is spending the winter in New York, is the resident scout of the Atlanta League and she has been busy the past ten days working out with Harper's Bazaar some special features for the Silver Jubilee program. Every day there come wires, specials, and airmail letters informing Stella (Mrs. William) Wellborn, chairman of program production, of the progress she is making.

Hortense Adams (Mrs. Frank Jr.) Boston, who returned yesterday from a ten-day stay in New York, came back with ticket reservations from Atlanta who are in New York and vow they wouldn't miss the Follies even though it means a cross-country trek to see them.

Betty (Mrs. Joseph) Hamilton was in New York last week for several days, and spent a good part of her time calling on national advertisers for the program. She went armed with a book of contracts, and she and Beth (Mrs. Charles) Tuller, chairman of program advertising, are now busy following up by wire and letters the advertising prospects Betty conferred with while in New York.

Louise (Mrs. Ivan Jr.) Allen and Anne Wynn (Mrs. Bruce) Montgomery are also in New York. They, too, went away with their notebooks filled with addresses and specific assignments.

During the last Follies, Catharine (Mrs. Everard Jr.) Richardson and Mary Wylie (Mrs. Edwin) McCarty flew to New York and spent a week just attending to Follies business. But this year, with the annual trek to New York in full swing, the jobs are parceled out to various individuals as they depart. The stay-at-homes are busy too, as you can well imagine, for the Junior League has set its heart on making its Silver Anniversary Follies the biggest and most elaborate event ever staged by the Junior League in its 25-year history.

And just a tip from Sally, if you haven't already made your ticket reservations for one of the three performances, it might be a good idea to give Frances Haven (Mrs. William) Beers a ring right now. Her number is Cherokee 8027.

AND SPEAKING of the Junior League, the Columbus League celebrated its tenth anniversary Thursday evening with a dinner at the Country Club. The party honored the league's founder, Mrs. Hatcher Boykin, who, as a member of the Atlanta League, organized the Columbus group. Mrs. Willis Battle, the first president, and the seven provisional members, Katherine Richards, Ann Wade, Ann Foley, Agnes Walden, Joan Raht, Ann Wynn Chancellor and Mrs. J. C. Harris, were present. Mrs. Young Snider, president, presided.

An emergency call for 1,000 sweaters for Army and Navy men on duty in the North Atlantic ocean has been received from Washington by the Atlanta Chapter of the American Red Cross. These must be completed by November 25. Wool and instructions may be secured from 848 Peachtree street. Wouldn't you like to have a sweater in that shipment going out to men who are on the front line of American action for the defense of freedom?

SATURDAY was a "red-letter day" in the lives of a group of ingenious sub-debs who met at the Huntington road home of their sponsors, Major and Mrs. C. L. McCauley, to organize a sorority. They call themselves the Alpha Chis, and their state charter will be delivered "most any day now" by the main line. Members are June Hunt, Martha Summer, Barbara Warren, Carolyn Brownlee, Catherine Snider, Mabel Dalon, Jeanne Batcheller, Elaine Rhodes, Nellita Rhodes, Carolyn Gay, Johanna Dougherty, Lyla Jones, Jane Clements, Dot Thurman, Eleanor Portwood and Frances Phillips.

THERE WAS a great deal of sentiment attached to the tea given yesterday by Frances Shumate, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Shumate, for her guest, Priscilla Lobeck, of Miami.

The two girls are schoolmates at Wesleyan College, you know, Frances having adopted Priscilla for a "big sister" last year when the former was a freshman and the latter a junior. They are here for the duration of the fall holidays, a customary vacation at the college in lieu of a Thanksgiving holiday.

The 50 guests invited to the party yesterday included Atlanta students at Wesleyan and their visitors, who are a group of students whose homes are too distant for them to take advantage of the five-day holiday.

Special guests were Mrs. Harold McKenzie, national alumnae president; Mrs. J. T. Stillwell Jr., Atlanta alumnae president; Mrs. Edward G. Warner, president of Chapter I; Mrs. Ella P. Leonard, aunt of the hostess and a Wesleyan alumna, and Mrs. Carrie B. Aiken, who taught Frances in the second grade and who also is an alumna of Wesleyan.

A very special guest was Mrs. Arthur Few, who always is present on happy occasions in the Shumate household. When Frances was a tiny tot she decided that when you love anyone very much that person automatically becomes a relative. And for that reason she and Mrs. Few "adopted" each other as relatives!

As each student guest arrived at the party she was given her class colors by Nancy Womac and Marion Persons, the alumnae being presented with the college colors. The Wesleyan colors, lavender and purple, featured the decorations in the reception hall. The sophomore colors, green and gold, predominated in the living and dining rooms.

Mrs. William P. Leonard presided at the tea service and Mrs. E. B. Worsham and Mrs. Finch Walker assisted in entertaining.

There was one stag present—Frances' father—for she never has a party without consulting him about the date and the hour just to make certain that he will be able to attend!

MILDRED AND PAUL SEYDEL, who are noted for their grand parties, staged a surprise feature on Sunday afternoon when they entertained at cocktails at their home on Pace's Ferry road for Margaret Peavy, Margaret Harmon and Josephine McDougall, a trio of popular debutantes.

A sudden stop in Graham Jackson's music was the signal for an announcement by Mildred of the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Miller. Known professionally as Kermit and Lorraine, the couple has just arrived here from the Cadillac hotel at Miami Beach, and at Sunday's party they gave exhibitions of the rumba, the tango, the waltz, and to top it all, the jitterbug!

In addition to thrilling the crowd with their dancing, their presence added an additional note of interest when it was learned that pretty blond Lorraine is a great-grandniece of the King of Norway. Kermit is as handsome and dapper as his wife is blond. They have a number of friends here made upon previous visits, and are having a gay time partying this week before they step into the spotlight of a two weeks' engagement at the Henry Grady hotel.

Miss Celeste Kessler, at the left, and Mrs. W. D. Wise form a busy twosome these days as they make preparations for the mammoth benefit bridge to be held on Tuesday, November 18, under the sponsorship of the American Woman's Voluntary Service. Miss Kessler is in charge of properties for the affair, and Mrs. Wise is chairman of prizes to be awarded at the benefit. The party will be held at the Georgian Terrace hotel, with Mrs. Charles Jagels as general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ralph McGill, who is ways and means chairman for A. W. V. S.

DO YOU KNOW: That Perry Wheeler was fortified with a dime-store wedding band as well as the "real McCoy" when he was best man at the recent Royal-Gower wedding in Cordele, "just in case"? ... That Mrs. Roy Booker is taking 40 children from the Osage Sanders Nursery to the rodeo on Friday afternoon? ... That for the first time in many years not a single member of the Debutante Club invited a member of the Nine O'Clocks as her escort for the Halloween ball? ... That debutante C. C. Proctor wants to be a foreign correspondent? ... That Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper are planning to fly down from Washington for Carolyn Reed's debut? ... That Kecker Newton likes pink gloves? ... That Mrs. James L. Logan is going to so many parties for her debutante granddaughter, Mary Hodgson, that the latter has given her a date book? ... That Perry Dutton has postponed her visit to Jacksonville? ... That 33 boys from the Naval Air Base at Camp Gordon were made happier on Sunday by invitations to dinner in Atlanta homes?

For Miss Swanstrom.

Miss Esther Mae Swanstrom, whose marriage to Willard Smith, of Miami, Fla., will take place next month, was central figure on Saturday at a miscellaneous show given by Mrs. H. S. Clark at the Elks Club.

Mrs. Hale Almand assisted in entertaining the guests who numbered 20. The lace-overlaid tea

Miss Seymour Weds. William A. Barron.

Marked with dignity was the marriage of Miss Esther Mae Seymour, of Atlanta and Macon, to William Alfred Barron, of Newnan, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the chapel of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church. Rev. Ronald C. Young, pastor of the Central Baptist church in Newnan, performed the impressive rites in the presence of a few close friends and relatives.

The bride wore a smart ensemble of gray blue wool with matching turban and alligator accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was of white orchids.

Lewis Beers, of Newnan, was best man, and the bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Henry C. Dodd, of Macon.

Mrs. Barron is the daughter of Mrs. James Franklin Seymour, of Macon. She is a graduate of Miller High school in Macon and later attended the Wesleyan Conservatory there. For the past year she has been employed here in the state office of the National Youth Administration for Georgia.

Mr. Barron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Barron, of Newnan. He attended Gordon Military Academy and Auburn. He holds a responsible position with the Manufacturers Bank in Newnan.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Barron left for a wedding trip to New Orleans, after which they will reside in Newnan.

State B. and P. W. Club Holds Institute November 15-16

Members of Business and Professional Women's Club will attend a membership and legislative institute being arranged by the State Federation, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth White, Augusta, president, to be held at the Georgian Terrace hotel November 15-16.

Miss Dorothy Crook, director of legislation and public affairs of the National Federation of B. & P. W. clubs, will arrive from New York on Friday evening to assume the leadership of this institute, as well as Miss Sara L. Buchanan, of national headquarters, who will work in connection with the legislative end of the meeting. The object of the institute is to analyze program and membership problems, and to plan methods of solving them. This is to be done by means of personal conferences, round-table discussions, and printed aids.

Miss Crook, who is highly qualified for this work, was born in New York city, and attended Barnard College, where she majored in government. She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and was awarded a scholarship which enabled her to spend a summer, while in college at Geneva, Switzerland, studying international relations. She has also done graduate work in economics at American University in Washington, D. C., and at Columbia University, where she received her master's degree.

Members from over the state are expected to attend this institute, particularly the state membership chairman, Miss Virginia Brown, of Gainesville; Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, state legislative chairman, and membership and legislative chairmen of local clubs and districts.

Arrangements for the institute are being made by the state vice president and institute chairman, Mrs. Odessa Henson.

The opening session will be held at the B. & P. W. clubrooms in the Georgian Terrace hotel on Saturday at 3 o'clock. The out-of-town visitors will be entertained at 5 o'clock at a buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Mamie K. Taylor, on Briarcliff road, following which the group will convene in the clubrooms at 7:30 o'clock for a legislative session headed by Miss Buchanan.

On Sunday at 9 o'clock membership will be discussed. At 1 o'clock luncheon will be served at the Terrace, followed by an open forum.

D. A. R.'s To Hear Dr. Louie Newton

Dr. Louie D. Newton will speak at the meeting of Atlanta Chapter D. A. R. at "Craigie House" on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock. Prior to the chapter meeting the executive board meets at 2:15 o'clock in the library of the chapter house.

Mrs. Hugh Dobbins will give a reading and Mrs. Henry J. Baker, chairman, has arranged the musical program. Mrs. Baker will present Miss Martha Ware, soprano, who will be accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Victor Clark. Memorial exercises will be held for Miss Katherine B. Massey. Mrs. George Breitenbuecher will read the resolutions. Mrs. Walter Scott Askey, chairman, has arranged two radio programs for November. The chapter will present a flag to the members of the Dolly Madison Chapter C. A. R. at the next meeting. Mrs. William A. Bugg Jr., is senior president of this chapter. The registrar, Mrs. E. Rivers, will report the new members recently received by Atlanta chapter. These include Mesdames L. Green Arnold, L. Milton Cavender, Roy J. Chambee, Walter Hamilton Durham, John Montgomery, Harrie Jackson Pate, Jack Watkins Patterson, Robert Lee Schnessler, Francis Schuring, J. Robert Snapp, R. C. Vickers, O. McRae Williams, Laurence W. Young, Ann Mathison Lockridge, Misses Callie Jeannette Riddick and Mildred Walker.

Tea will be served by Mrs. W. E. Beckham, chairman; Mrs. Bun Wyllie and members of the hospitality committee.

When the Atlanta Woman's Club celebrated its 46th birthday yesterday, Mrs. Howard Patillo, president of the club, cut the birthday cake. Grouped about her are Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, seated at the right, who is a charter member and one of the early presidents of the club; Mrs. Conway Hunter, standing at left, who is first vice president and program chairman, and Mrs. Alex B. Brown, the club's literary chairman.

Tea Compliments Debs and Bride

The 26th street residence of her aunt, Mrs. Carl Dodd, formed the setting yesterday afternoon for the tea given by Miss Adeline Barnett for a trio of debs and a recent bride.

The honor guests for the affair were Mesdames Mary Ellen Orme, Virginia Richardson, Marion Knowles, and Mrs. Waters Ross, the former Miss Mamie Hallman.

Miss Harriet Hallman received the cards at the door. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Isabel Vretman, Margaret Matthews, Joanne Witt, Miriam Hallman and the mothers of the hostess and honor guests, Mesdames Albert Barnett, of Asheville, N. C.; John Hallman, Jean Bienville, Leaver Richardson and Clarence Knowles.

A crystal bowl centered with a crystal figurine surrounded by shaggy white chrysanthemums, tuberoses and yellow snapdragons formed the centerpiece of the tea table, which was overlaid with a Venetian lace cloth.

Student Forum Meets Thursday

Members and friends of Atlanta Chapter of Pan American Student Forum will be entertained Thursday at 8 o'clock by Georgia Military Academy Club in its auditorium at College Park. The program will be presented at that time under the direction of Captain Matias Morales, head of the Spanish department.

Natives of Spain and Spanish America, and students of Spanish and Hispanic American affairs will attend the meeting.

Georgia Products Dinner Planned by Woman's Club

A most interesting feature of the Georgia products dinner of the Atlanta Woman's Club to be given on Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock is the wild flower exhibit of paintings by Mrs. Mary Willis, which is in charge of Mrs. C. J. Willoughby, assisted by Mrs. Fletcher F. Crown and Mrs. Chester Martin.

Garden clubs and individuals who wish may enter a contest for dried flower arrangements in two classes, first for "dinner tables," and second for "house or home arrangements" by contacting either Mrs. Willoughby, Dearborn 3477; or the club, Vernon 0761, and have the arrangements at the clubhouse not later than noon on Thursday. There will be six prizes offered; first, second and third prize for each group. The first prizes will be $3 each; second prizes will be $2 each, and the third prizes will be $1 each.

Specifications include: variety, 30 points; distinction, 40 points; design, 15 points, and perfection of arrangement, 15 points. The dinner will consist of delicious Georgia products and the public is invited. For information call Mrs. Thomas A. Suttles at Hemlock 5906 or the club, Vernon 0761.

Members of Mrs. Suttles' committee are Mesdames E. E. Beng-

Ed Branch Jr., at the left, stole a march on the kiddies and did not wait for the rodeo matinee next Friday. He dressed himself up in his cowboy togs and went to Ponce de Leon Park for an advance glimpse of the cowboys, cowgirls, and clowns gathered here for Atlanta's first championship rodeo, which opened last evening. To prove himself a real cowboy, he lassoed clown Billy Keen, who, at the moment, was giving a riding lesson to his young son, Billy Jr. In addition to being an accomplished clown, Billy is the only cowboy in the world who does the daring Roman jump, which means that he hurdles an automobile while riding two horses. The rodeo will continue each night through Friday, the proceeds to benefit the Tallulah Falls School. The sponsors are the members of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah.

Miss Smith Weds S. C. Atkinson

MILLEN, Ga., Nov. 10.—Miss Martha Wilson Smith and Samuel Clay Atkinson, of Millen, were married at high noon on November 1 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Smith, in Greenville, Ga., announcement being made today.

Elder R. H. Barwick, of Barnesville, officiated, and music was presented by Mrs. J. B. Hutchinson, of Senoia, and Harvey Estes Jr., of Gay, violinist.

William Robert Motley, of Portsmouth, Va., was the groom's best man, and ushers were Sam Smith Jr., brother of the bride; Rylands Cary Motley, of Portsmouth; Arthur Estes Jr., and Tom Mann, of Gay.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her radiant beauty was enhanced by her chic suit of imported brown wool worn with chocolate brown accessories and a matching picture felt hat. She carried a lace handkerchief, a gift of her great-aunt, Mrs. Sara Thrash, of Gay, and a shoulder spray of bronze orchids completed her costume.

A wedding breakfast was given by the bride's parents following the ceremony. Mrs. Sara Thrash having presided at the coffee service.

Upon their return from a wedding trip east, Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson will establish residence in Millen.

Miss McLarty Weds Robert L. Krieger.

Miss Frances McLarty, of Atlanta, formerly of Manchester, became the bride of Robert Lyman Krieger, of Louisville, Ky., at a ceremony solemnized on October 25 at the study of Dr. L. M. Hill in Athens.

The bride wore a model of blue wool with matching coat. Her accessories were in shades of British tan.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ray McLarty, of Augusta, formerly of Manchester, and received her education at LaGrange College and Draughton's School of Commerce. She holds a position with Allyn & Bacon Publishing Company in Atlanta.

Mr. Krieger is the only son of Robert Norman Krieger and the late Mrs. Anna Tuttle Krieger, of Louisville.

He is a student at Georgia School of Technology, where he is taking mechanical engineering, and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The couple will reside at 1064 Piedmont avenue, Atlanta.

Anemia Is No Respector Of Weight

By Ida Jean Kain.

We have made a radical change in our ideas about special diets for this and that, because there is now one good diet for almost everything. The diet that conforms to the nutrition yardstick for health has such far-reaching effects that it is even looked upon as the main treatment for simple anemia.

Much of this proof is furnished by recent experiments with nutrition and simple anemia at the University of Nebraska. In her report before the American Dietetic Association, Ruth M. Leverton, professor of human nutrition research at the university, stated that the problem had been approached from various angles with different groups of young women as the subjects.

A group of 50 girls showed a rise in hemoglobin when given dietary supplements. Surprisingly enough, those who received the vitamin B complex got along better than the ones who were given 126 milligrams of iron daily. And a study of 96 girls proved optimum amounts of phosphorus, calcium and protein to be very effective in promoting the storage of iron.

In every case it was added that simple anemia is more likely to result from a generally poor diet—"one that is suboptimal in many respects than from a diet that is low merely in iron." Although the need is primarily for iron, these studies indicate that the way to build up the iron content of the blood is by following a high protective diet of good quality protein, vitamins and minerals and not just by increasing the iron intake.

A general conclusion to be drawn from the experiments is that the hemoglobin test is an indication of the entire nutritional status. The low iron content of the blood is apt to mean more than an iron deficiency. And it follows that the well-balanced optimum diet holds out more promise for the treatment of nutritional anemia than does iron medication. This is especially interesting to women. They need more iron than men.

In general the diet for this condition should include: Liberal quantities of lean meat with meat organs once a week, adequate amounts of eggs and milk daily to supply calcium, iron and protein; a daily abundance of the whole grains for the B vitamins; fresh fruits and vegetables, particularly those yellow in color, to supply vitamins and mineral such as copper; citrus fruits for vitamin C. Many overweighted are anemic and a high quality diet with calories restricted will improve their health in this respect even as the weight is lowered.

Interesting jacket treatment distinguishes this black crepe dinner dress worn by Jane Wyman. The dress has soft folds across the front of the skirt and is topped with a fitted long-sleeved jacket with red felt platrone encrusted with a gold thread embroidery and jewel-like accents.

Dating on the Sly Is a Losing Game

Dear Dixie:

I am engaged to a boy and my cousin is engaged to another girl. I love my cousin and he says he loves me. This may seem odd to you but it is true. He lives a great distance from me, and he asked me to visit his home one weekend. While I was there he always took his "free" home away, and then we would go somewhere and talk in peace. His other girl is much younger than he is and is always trying to run his business for him and boss him. She is very jealous of me, and I guess I was just as jealous of her. My cousin said he had always resented my friend and was very jealous. He said he had tried to forget me but that it was no use. My cousin said he did not think it would be fair for me to come into the picture now, and if he could not have the girl he wanted, he would have to take someone else. I do not know what to do to make him realize that he is only being unfair to himself as well as to me. UNDECIDED.

By Dixie George.

If you do not love your fiancé, either break the engagement or postpone the wedding. Feeling the way you do, I do not think that you would be fair to your fiancé if you married now. You are not sure of your love and until you are you had better dodge the altar. As for your cousin, he may love you, but a man seldom marries a girl if he does not love her, and if there is even a ghost of a chance of getting the girl he does love. If he does not want you to come into the picture now, I think he is being a hypocrite by asking you for dates on the sly. I think you had better stop having dates with him.

Youthful Charm in a Home Frock

By Lillian Mae.

Pattern 4923.

At last—a home frock pretty enough so you don't have to dress for company! "People will love its youthful charm," says Lillian Mae about her pattern 4923. The basque waist dips in front and in back, matching the dipping neckline. Note, too, that the bodice buttons down the back. The banding at the neckline and sleeves may be made of contrasted fabric like the twin heart pockets. If you like this frock all one fabric, the gay contrast border of this prettily scalloped skirt may be used on the inside as a hem facing. Optional, of course, is the length of the sleeves... you may make them short, three-quarter or long. The Sewing Instructor guides you step by step.

Pattern 4923 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 yards 35-inch fabric and 7-8 yard contrast. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size name, address and style number.

The merry-go-round of holiday time is fast approaching, so order the latest Lillian Mae Pattern Book and be clothes-ready! It's a colorful fashion success story, with afternoon and after-dark glamour wear, with north and southbound sportsters, with distinctive budgeteer styles for brides, career girls, housewives and the younger generation. Smart gift-making ideas, too—and a special gift for you in a free hat and bag pattern! Book fifteen cents. Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Make Left-Overs the Main Meat Dish

By Sally Saver.

Our all-out-for-defense program places strong emphasis upon economy. The Consumers' Council for Defense asks each housewife to do her part by making sure that everything—every article in the home, every scrap of food be put to best possible use. This fits splendidly with my own ideas, because, though I've only one Scotch ancestor that I've been able to discover, I've never been able to tolerate waste of any kind. I'm the kind who saves steak and roast bones to make soup, and feels guilty if a piece of bread gets mouldy before it can be turned into useful crumbs. Using leftovers, a good means of saving, are a problem to most housekeepers, so today I offer a recipe for an unusual dish which uses any kind of leftover meats and vegetables. Here it is:

Pinwheel Meat Rolls.

2 cups flour.
1 cup corn meal (yellow meal makes a prettier dish).
4 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon salt.
1-4 cup butter or margarine.
1 cup milk.
1-2 cups cooked meat (ham or other).
1-2 cups cooked vegetables (peas, asparagus, carrots, green beans or any combination).
2 1-2 cups medium white sauce.
Sift flour, measure; sift twice with meal, baking powder and salt. Cut butter or margarine in with pastry blender. Add milk, all at once and stir until ingredients are well mixed. Turn out on floured board and roll into rectangular sheet about 3-8 inch thick. Cover with ground meat and roll up like jelly roll, starting from long side. Cut roll crosswise in 12 slices and place in shallow, greased baking dish. Bake in hot oven 425 degrees, about 25 minutes or until a rich golden brown. Combine cooked, leftover vegetables with sauce, heat thoroughly and serve over baked meat rolls. Serve with a crisp fruit or vegetable salad.

For help with any food problem write or phone Sally Saver, The Constitution, or WA. 6565.

These pinwheel meat rolls are a "glorified" left over.

Steam Shovel Operator Is Stubborn; Gets His Date With Ann Sheridan

By Louella O. Parsons.

deal today to borrow the gifted English director from David for "The Saboteur," a mystery drama—the first, I believe, to be made by Hitchcock with an American locale. Robert Cummings, who is vacationing with Mrs. C. in New Orleans, Cuba, Florida and elsewhere, will have the lead and Priscilla Lane has been borrowed from Warners for the co-starring role with Bob. I am glad Hitchcock is to do a thriller, for few directors have the flare for making these chiller-dillers so exciting and so full of suspense.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Darned clever—these steam shovel operators! The funniest story I heard today concerns one Dick M. Worsten, who was stirring up more noise than two Fourth of Julys with his steam shovel working next to the "Juke Girl" location on the Warner lot. When an assistant director asked him if he would stop the confounded racket when they blew two whistles, he said: "No—why should I? I have my work to do, too." When logic wouldn't work the desperate company resorted to bribery. "What will you take to stop that racket?" And there's where the cagey Mr. Worsten went to town. "A date with Ann Sheridan and I'll stop," he bargained—and doggone if he didn't lunch with Annie at the Warner commissary today.

The two happiest kids in town today were Marjorie Reynolds and Virginia Dale, and why not? Right on a silver platter they were handed the femme leads with Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire in "Holiday Inn" and they'll both sing with Bing and dance with Fred. That's the way it is in Hollywood —unheard of today and famous tomorrow. Mark Sandrich is just as pleased at finding two youngsters who can sing and dance as the girls are at getting the break. Virginia has appeared in several Para pictures. But Marjorie is up from the past—having played one minor role in a Paramount picture four years ago and several westerns at Republic. Danny Dare, the dance director, remembered she had talent, but he couldn't remember her name. He finally located her name in the files and Marjorie was given a test.

Irving Rapper was the most embarrassed young man in town when he met the New York plane with four huge orchids and Betty Field didn't get off today! Betty changed her mind in Chicago when the plane was grounded and took the train home. If the orchids don't wilt, Betty will probably be wearing them tomorrow morning when she reports on the Para lot for huddles about "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," Isabel Scott Ricketts' novel. It's an amusing little yarn about high jinks in a small town social set with Betty playing the banker's wife and Ray Mould her husband. Loretta Young was once rumored for the same role.

The very good looking Bob Gregory, who once was wed to Princess Baba, glamorous daughter of the Rajah of Sarawak, has started a new movie career with a vengeance. He is working at the Hal Roach studios in "Dudes Are Pretty People" and just before he went to Roach he made "Mob Town" at Universal. If Hal can get Gregory off to the start that he gave Victor Mature the world will be the ex-wrestler's in a short time. He has a personality and a beautiful speaking voice.

Today's Charm Tip

Says the busy business woman: "Heaven preserve me from the nonemployed friend who calls to indulge in a long social chat. I love to hear from her during my leisure time but not during business hours."

MY DAY WPA Completes Nation's Guide Book

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—All day yesterday, from 10 o'clock until after 5, the heads of many women's national organizations met at the Labor Department auditorium.

Miss Eloise Davison, who has been lent to the Office of Civilian Defense by the New York Herald Tribune, and who is in charge of all plans for women's activities, arranged this meeting. I think it was one of the most interesting that I have ever attended.

The speeches given in the morning by the various government officials were informative and interesting, and brought home many facts we need to know if we are going to do constructive work in our communities. I do not feel that we can overemphasize the importance of co-ordinating all of our resources on a community basis to serve us now and in the future.

A strange report comes to me from New England. It appears that volunteers are reluctant to go work unless they can do some work which is distinctly a wartime occupation. They do not realize that improving social services in a community is basic defense work. Every time any volunteer takes a course in nutrition or child care, and sees that the community as a whole is better fed, she has done something which will be invaluable if we are attacked.

November 10 to 18 has been designated as American Guide Week, because it represents the end of six years of work done by thousands of anonymous American writers on the writers' project of WPA. They have been doing research work and writing histories of our states and cities, which make up a story of the nation. The 51st guide book is now out and the series is complete.

Dick McPhee Lost to Bulldogs Via Emergency Appendectomy

All in The Game
BY JACK TROY

They Were Wrong DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Nov. 10.—Students bore a large banner through the streets of Jacksonville the morning of the Georgia-Florida game.

"We'll do more than break his jaw," the sign proclaimed in sprawling black letters.

It may be they had Sinkwich's neck in mind, but the fact is that the fighting Gators didn't even tickle a rib of the Bulldog star as he scored 15 points. The ominous pre-game sign never again appeared.

Speaking of superstition, Forrest (Spec) Towns, after driving Andy Dudish from Washington to Jacksonville in 13 hours, refused to attend the game.

"I have never seen a Georgia team win since I've been coaching," Spec declared. "And so I'll wait at the hotel this time."

Spec didn't even tune in until late in the last quarter, when Georgia was in the money.

Dudish, by the way, played fine defensive football, and Georgia would have been really short-handed if Towns hadn't used his head—and an auto accelerator—so smartly.

Cliff Kimsey Georgia's got only one real blocking back, and it is to the great credit of Cliff Kimsey that he can stay in there and absorb the licks as well as he does in every game. He was a full-back last year.

Kimsey played 57 minutes against Florida. He has played this much or more in all the games. And he does a great job of blocking and tackling.

Sometimes they throw the ball to him, but Saturday he stuck largely to blocking, and the Gators would have welcomed a substitution for him much earlier than 57 minutes.

Lieb, the Florida coach, didn't have an opportunity to play "Showboat" as he did in last year's game. He was up and down the sidelines in a much more prominent role than the cheer leaders, and he even went so far as to wave his defense back now and then. That was last season.

This, of course, is against all the rules, but Lieb was determined to be the whole show, or nothing. He was the central figure.

Saturday he remained back near the 'Gator bench and toward the end was hard to distinguish from Toots Perry, the All-America water boy. The only difference was that Toots wore a sweater and carried a bucket. Then, too, he had more girth around the middle.

Now all Lieb has to worry about is licking Miami this week, a tough Miami team, and then keeping the 'Gators up for the Georgia Tech game the following weekend at Gainesville.

Florida licked both Georgia and Tech last year, but it is just barely possible the shoe will be on the other foot this time.

Can't Get Steel National defense will prevent the Orange Bowl people from providing some 60,000 seats for the New Year's Day game. They can't get steel, so are doing everything else they First-String Fullback Only Frosh Earning 4 Numerals.

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 17.—Lady luck must have been on a South Sea island honeymoon when Wallace Butts was made head football coach at the University of Georgia. And from the looks of things she's still going in the opposite direction from this Classic City home of the Bulldogs.

Just when everything was looking up for the once-beaten Bulldogs, who smashed a rugged Florida team Saturday, 19 to 3, ill-fortune dipped into the football dormitory and left dashing Dick McPhee, brilliant sophomore full-back, with an angry appendix, which doctors yanked out just in the nick of time early this morning.

SECOND TO SINKWICH.

McPhee was evidently rounding into the form Coach Butts and his aides at Georgia were expecting of him, for against Florida he was second only to the great Frankie Sinkwich as a ball carrier.

Dashing Dick is the ninth first or second-string player Georgia has lost, through ineligibility, withdrawal from school, to professional baseball or injuries since the end of spring practice.

In fact, if somebody would furnish Coach Butts with a couple of tackles, he could line up a representative club from the ranks of the lads who aren't with him anymore.

First to go was Paul Kluk, the regular blocking back before he signed a pro baseball contract; then Carl Grate left school, though he is back now and will be eligible next year. Grate would have been a first-string guard.

NINTH LOSS.

In rapid succession, Bill Gill and John Brown, both considered no worse than second-string ends, decided not to return to school. Then Brooker Blanton, second-string tailback, took a powder from a practice session after the season was underway, and Coach Butts told him to keep on going.

The Southeastern Conference took care of Gus Letch as ruling him ineligible on a technicality, and George Poschner, one of the two best ends in Dixie, broke his arm in the Alabama game. Homer Passmore, rated right behind Cliff Kimsey as a blocking back, underwent an appendectomy the day before the Mercer game.

Coach Butts took the latest blow—McPhee's loss—in stride. Though he said he felt the Sophomore plunger was just beginning to "learn what it's all about" and had yet to play up to his best ability.

GREAT CAGE STAR.

Dick played only one year of high school football before coming to Georgia. He is the best basketball player in school, and earned numerals, as a freshman, in both track and baseball. The only athlete at Georgia to receive four athletic awards.

McPhee had not been bothered by his appendix until he was stricken Sunday night. He told Coach Butts last night that he had a slight pain in his side Friday, but it passed away quickly and he decided not to mention it to school authorities.

Dr. H. B. Harris, who performed the operation, said McPhee's appendix was removed before it burst, but it didn't come out any too soon. Barring unforeseen complications, he will be up and about in a couple of weeks, but whether or not he will be able to play any basketball will depend upon the rapidity of his recovery.

Georgia's entire squad was given an off-day today. The Bulldogs meet Centre in Atlanta Saturday.

Asks the Inning Of Football Tilt

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 10.—(AP)—Maybe the lady had something, after all, says the Ledger-Enquirer's Felton Gordon of a recent telephone customer.

She called the sports department about the football game which at that time was Florida 3, Georgia 2.

"What inning is it?" she asked casually.

Butts Praises Cliff Kimsey At Luncheon

Coach's Wit Entertains Members of Atlanta Touchdown Club.

Wally Butts, Georgia's head coach, was in a good humor yesterday despite the bad news that Dick McPhee was lost for the season.

The round little coach entertained members of the Atlanta Touchdown Club with a half-hour talk full of wit and subtle remarks which kept his audience in an uproar.

Then he commented on pictures of the Georgia games with Columbia and Auburn, creating many more laughs.

Wally wasn't very serious during his talk but he did say that Mississippi's backfield is the best Georgia has played this season.

He praised the work of a couple of his players, mainly Alternate Captain Cliff Kimsey. The veteran blocking back has averaged nearly 57 minutes in every game this fall and has played brilliantly.

"I believe he should be given a lot of credit," Butts said.

He also had words of praise of Walter Rusk, one of his guards, and several other boys on his team. He refused to make any predictions as to the outcome of future games but said he thought his boys would play "good games" against all opponents.

The movies, in technicolor, were highly entertaining.

Kentucky Derby Scheduled May 2

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 10.—(AP)—May 2 was selected tentatively today as the date for the 1942 Kentucky Derby.

Colonel Matt J. Winn, president of Churchill Downs, suggested to the board of directors in session here, that the spring meeting open on April 25 and run until May 16 with the Derby on May 2.

The directors took no action but indicated the date for the Derby would be that proposed by Winn.

213,319 See Wave In Five Contests

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Paid attendance at the Alabama-Tulane football game here last Saturday was officially announced today as 54,068, a new record for a regularly scheduled grid contest in the south.

The former record was 50,800 at the Duke-North Carolina game in Durham two years ago. Alabama and Tulane had set the previous local high with 49,417 in 1939.

Saturday's crowd lifted Tulane's home-game attendance for the five contests season to 213,319, which also is a new southern mark for a regular campaign. The former high was set by Tulane last year with 183,298.

Actress Maria Montez Disrupts Jacket Drill

After Movie Star Departs, Able and Enthusiastic Tech Squad Works for Alabama.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Most of the excitement at Georgia Tech's football practice yesterday wasn't caused by a football player, coach or team.

Instead it was Miss Maria Montez, the Universal movie star, or is it starlet, who created most of the conversation and caused quite a few of the players to blush shyly while photographers snapped their pictures together.

Miss Montez, quite impressed with the "cuteness" of Little Davey Eldredge and the six-foot four-inch frame of Big George Webb, even invited the boys to her cocktail party in the afternoon.

But a football team can't train on cocktails. Especially if it's getting ready to play Alabama on the next Saturday. So the invitation was graciously refused.

After Miss Montez' departure, the players suddenly snapped back to normal and realizing their toughest foe of the season is coming up, went through a short but spirited workout.

The Jackets displayed a lot of pepper during the signal and punting drill. No serious injuries resulted from the Kentucky battle and the club is expected to be in top shape for the Tide contest in Birmingham.

Dawson Claims Official's Error Ruined Morale

Alabama Guilty of Grounding Pass, Tulane Coach Says.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 10.—(AP) Coach Red Dawson, of Tulane, declared today that failure of officials to call a penalty against Alabama Saturday for grounding a pass "had plenty to do" with his team's 19-14 defeat by the Crimson Tide.

The play he discussed occurred with about five minutes to play in the final period, with Tulane leading 14-13. Alabama had just obtained the ball on Tulane's 40-yard line and Halfback Jimmy Nelson had driven far back, attempting to pass. He threw the ball but it went only a short distance toward a teammate, who was running a few yards ahead of him.

It was ruled an incomplete pass and on the next play he completed a 13-yard toss to Holt Rast, which started Alabama on the winning touchdown drive.

"If I've ever seen a clear-cut case of grounding a ball," Dawson told the Monday Quarterback's Club, "that was it. The man in front of him was a guard, ineligible to receive the pass. Our kids were excited and tried to get the officials to rule properly. The boys were still griping and lacked the pepper on the next play. That ruling had plenty to do with what happened after that. If the play had been called properly Alabama would have been pushed back 15 yards with loss of a down."

Aggies Ranked Top Team in Nation by Williamson; Texas 2d

System Bats 82.6 Despite Many Upsets

Devils, Irish, Gophers, Tide, Rebels Lined Up in First Seven.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.
The two top teams of the Williamson ratings last week got bumped. But it wasn't the first time that a weak sister of the Texas circuit has reached up to unexpected heights and slipped down the leader. Nor was it the first time that a bowl-bound Fordham team was headed off by a much lower rated opponent.

So Texas drops to No. 2 behind the Texas Aggies who came through with a 21-to-10 victory over S. M. U.

Fordham's Rams, No. 2 last week, dropped out of the leading 10 teams of the nation by losing to underdog Pittsburgh, 13 to 0. While on the upsets, it may be mentioned that Kansas State 3, South Carolina 0 was rather unexpected in the major circles.

In spite of all this the Williamson system certainly improved its record of the past two weeks. It made a win-lose tally last week out of 190 games reported, 32 losses and two upsetting ties which embrace the Texas-Baylor affair.

Brightest spots were Trinity of Connecticut 20, Carnegie Tech 0; Detroit 7, Marquette 6 (extra swell, by one-tenth of a point difference in the ratings); and Virginia Poly 14, North Carolina State 13 (another extra special).

Just about as good as a scoreless tie between Purdue and Michigan State. Remember the system had the Boilermakers of Purdue at 90.8 and the Spartans at 90.4. The system had Temple at 88 and Villanova at 87. Well, the score was 14 to 13 in favor of Temple.

Many people probably selected Kansas over West Virginia, but not the system. West Virginia 21, Kansas 0.

On the West Coast, Stanford came through as advertised to blank Southern California 13-0.

STILL SMILING—Despite a crippled arm little Robert E. Lee Jennings, of Eastman, Ga., wore a broad grin on his face Sunday as the general committee for the Tech-Georgia freshman football game Thanksgiving Day made its annual visit to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. Frank Spratt, right, is showing Robert one of the tickets for the game. Others in the picture are W. C. Wardlaw (left) and Jimmy Setze (center). Proceeds of the annual game go to the hospital, where crooked bones and bodies are made straight again.

Most of the other teams out there were consistent, except Washington taking California 13-6 against very close ratings.

These past game ratings represent each team's efficiency of consistent performance to date this season, calculated by the Williamson National Rating System. The ratings indicate each team's proven strength in comparison with its scheduled opponents, not always in comparison with all other teams in the nation. The final ratings of the completed season, however, will be close to a 100 per cent measure of relative strength, with the teams finishing in their true 1-23 order.

can to add seats for those who desire to see the parade. The committee has decided to transplant a dozen trees set along the side of Biscayne boulevard. This will make possible construction of 5,000 more seats for a parade.

In due time the Orange Bowl game is going to be worth $75,000 for each of the teams. As soon as the present madness ends and steel is available once more, they'll go ahead and provide the 60,000 seats and then will be able to match any bowl in the country.

Speaking of bowls, if the hope about the Sugar Bowl folks having already signed Fordham is correct, it may now be a little embarrassing. No matter what Fordham does from here on in, nothing can erase that terrible upset by Pittsburgh.

In fact, a lot of the hue and cry about Texas already has died since mediocre Baylor popped up with a tie. That hurt Texas plenty.

One can safely bet on one of the Mississippi being in a bowl. Also either Texas or Texas A. & M. Stanford seems to have it on the west coast. Duke rides high, wide and handsome.

Tulane is now definitely out of it, but Alabama goes along with a good chance. I suppose, too, that Fordham is still rated highly. Ordinarily a loss wouldn't amount to much, but it had to be Pittsburgh.

This is sure: If Duke gets the bid to go to the Rose Bowl, the Blue Devils of Durham will be the only unbeaten and untied team in any bowl.

In Short There was a timely bit of concessionaire management at Saturday's game in Jacksonville. The score at the half was 3 to 2 in Florida's favor, and each writer was presented with a hot dog and a Coca-Cola for refreshments. There was even baseball weather provided for the occasion.

Georgia had a fine football player sitting in the stands watching the action on Saturday. None other than Gus Letchaw, who runs on the order of Sinkwich. He'll be eligible next fall.

Arthur Hutchens, chief of southern football officials, saw the game and wondered, as did many others, how the ball was being spotted so inaccurately on several occasions. Two Georgia first downs were taken away by a scant foot when it was apparent the down had been made, once on the 10 and again at the 3 1/2-yard line.

Cuba is getting most of the duck shooting down this way. It seems the birds whisk on over Georgia and, in most cases, head for the coast of Cuba before gradually working back north. Floridians are claiming the season has opened much too soon.

Fans Look for Unexpected In Smithie-Purple Battles

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.
Finding W. C. Fields at a W. C. T. U. meeting would be no more shocking or unexpected a circumstance than spectators at the Boys' High-Tech games run into every year. Year in year out the unanticipated continually is popping up.

In the last 16 years in the series between the two elevens, which meet again Saturday afternoon at Grant field, the distinct pre-game favorite has been upset five times, or in every third tilt played. Five times the result has been strictly according to advance dope, and the other six times the result has been highly surprising in one manner or another. In other words, two out of every three times these teams meet the unexpected happens.

In 1925, the first year Shorty Doyal was in charge of the Boys' High entry, the Purples had lost most of their tilts and Tech High won most of theirs. The Smithies were heavily favored, but Pete Ford droppedkick a field goal from the 35-yard line to give the Purple a 3-to-0 triumph. Pete died two days later from a ruptured appendix which had been bothering him.

Boys' High won 9-7 in 1926 and 39-to-0 the following year, and both of those went according to the dope. The next time out, in 1928, the Blacksmites were heavy favorites and won, 13 to 7. And the 1929 Purple win by 19 to 6 also was according to form.

In 1930, though, came another big upset. Boys' High came up to the game unbeaten, but the Smiths clipped them, 2 to 0, w' n Hoot Gibson, later a Georgia Tech star, blocked a punt. In 1931 came that biggest reversal of form in the series' history, when Boys' High won 13 to 0 after they had tied Etowah, 0-0, and Tech High had trounced the same outfit, 58 to 0.

In 1932 the Purple was a top-heavy favorite and barely edged out a 13-7 decision. In 1933 Tech High won the G. I. A. A., but barely got by the Purples, 6 to 0. The losing side was on the Smithie 1-yard line when the game ended. And that is the way it has been all along. There are other good examples with the two most outstanding taking place in 1938 and 1939. In '38 the Purple apparently had it in the bag on form, but the Smithies won, 7-6. The next year came revenge for the Purples, who nipped one of Tech High's best elevens, 14 to 7.

There never has been a tie between the two elevens. The Purple

Wood Is Named Ryder Captain At Big Confab

Demaret, Hogan and Mangrum Selected for First Time.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Craig Wood, national open champion, was appointed captain of the 1942 Ryder Cup golf team at the annual meeting of the Professional Golfers Association.

Also named to the team were: Jimmy Demaret, Vic Ghezzi, Ben Hogan, Lloyd Mangrum, Harold McSpaden, Byron Nelson, Gene Sarazen, Horton Smith, and Sam Snead. Ghezzi is P. G. A. champion and Hogan is the year's leading money winner.

Walter Hagen was made honorary captain of the team. It was the first time Demaret, Mangrum and Hogan had been named to the squad.

Smith, McSpaden and Ghezzi were on the last Ryder Cup team, and Sarazen was a member of the first group ever chosen and also was picked on several subsequent squads.

The P. G. A. also announced that Fred Corcoran, of Boston, had been tendered a three-year contract as tournament bureau manager.

The election of officers is expected to take place Wednesday.

Clark To Engage Benedict Saturday

Clark University will spend a busy week of preparation for their fourth conference game with Benedict College, of Columbia, S. C., at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at 1 rper's stadium.

After losing a hard-fought game to Morehouse last Saturday, Coach Ralph Robinson plans to stress offensive and pass defense work every day as his team showed up poorly against the Tigers' aerial attack. The Clark forward wall, however, showed decided strength.

Several new plays will be added for increased power and scoring punch. The great kicking of Ingram pulled his team out of danger time and again last week but their blocking somewhat clogged the Clark offense and must be worked on.

Tickets are on sale at the business office of Clark College. This game was moved up from Saturday to Friday to make way for the Alabama State-Morehouse game here Saturday.

Evening College Wins Cage Opener

The Georgia Evening College basketball team held the lid off their 1941 schedule by defeating a strong National Battery five by the impressive score of 39-22. Outstanding offensive players for the Evening College "Owls" were Paul Hickman and Posey, with six points, and Gabriel, with 14, while Shackelford played a good defensive game. High scorer for the losers was Davis, with seven tallies.

SPORT AND YOUTH

Among the real wild kids of sport I'd like to nominate at least four rookies. They are Alonzo Stagg, 79; Connie Mack, 78; Matt Winn, 81, and E. R. Bradley, 82. Their average age is around 80 and they are just beginning to get up steam.

There must be something hooked to sport that blocks off the attacking years.

Stagg, one of Walter Camp's All-America veterans in 1889, which happens to be 52 years ago, is still one of the hardest-working football coaches in the trade. Stagg uses running spikes in place of crutches. They tell me at the College of the Pacific he is all over the field like a runaway coyote—and Stagg isn't more than a short chip shot away from 80.

Along the same line Connie Mack is all set for his next spring training trip, hoping this time to lift his Athletics up around the bottom of the first division. Connie, also, won't use up much calendar space before 80 arrives. His main ambition now is to win the A. L. pennant on his 80th birthday.

Stagg and Mack have been active features in over 60 years of sport, and neither is looking for a sunset port.

The Kentuckians

Colonel Matt Winn, of Kentucky, having left 80 well behind, is even more active than usual in rounding up his next Kentucky Derby.

At the same time Colonel E. R. Bradley at 82 still has his Lexington poses out looking for another Derby winner.

Colonel Winn has seen all the Kentucky Derbies ever run since the first one in 1875, and he hopes to turn the 70th Derby anniversary, three years further on, into the greatest pageant of them all.

It has been some time since Colonel Bradley won one of these Bluegrass features, so he is equally active in having another three-year-old ready soon, one with a chance to win. His Bimelech just missed out.

Colonel Winn has an idea at this moment that Alonzo may be the greatest Derby winner of all time. As great as Alsab is, there is a wide gap between a two-year-old and a three-year-old, considering all the deadly incidents that can happen to thoroughbred, including household's knee and the pip.

Nothing New

You may remember Del Pratt, one of Alabama's leading football stars and a New York Yankee second baseman of high renown. Del is now in the service station business in Galveston, Texas. He writes—

"I read your comment on the center passing the ball while facing his backs in 1941. If you will check back to Dr. Pollard's Alabama days you'll find that we used the same formation in 1907, 1908 and 1909. In those same years the present T-formation was all the vogue. Also, the wedge. And I believe the Notre Dame shift was the same as Dr. Pollard's two-step which he used in those same years.

"My old scrapbook verifies all this. I still appreciate your old writeups about me—the famous drop-ball double play when I was with the Yankees and the field goal I kicked against Georgia in 1908 in Atlanta. It may interest you to know I can still plant a placekick from the 50, although I carry 53 years back of me."

Alabama To Lose Stewart to Army

ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 10.—(AP) Vaughn Stewart, Alabama second center, was given an A-1 rating for Army service at a special examination here today and ordered to report for induction at the Tusculossa board November 13. He shared the center position against Tulane Saturday with Joe Domnanovich, regular pivot man, who has been injured.

VANDY BANGED UP

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The injury jinx cropped out in full force in Vanderbilt's football camp today, five gladiators hurt in the Sewanee game joining Halfback J. P. Moore on the casualty list. Moore was hurt in the Tulane battle.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Nov. 10.—(AP) George Fesperman, secretary of the Waycross Bears, has been elevated to the presidency, succeeding M. M. Monroe.

ples hold a 10-6 advantage in the win column since Shorty Doyle took over the Hurricane reins back in 1925. But not even death and taxes are surer than the fact one Purple-Smithie game will produce some of the greatest football played all year and that one may always expect the unexpected.

keep him out of any of the week's rough work. Otherwise the team is ready to go.

It became clear that the Techs are planning to throw quite a number of passes at the Alabama squad. Coaches don't figure their light backs can make much headway through the big Crimson line and therefore spent a lot of time polishing their passing game.

Johnny Bosch and Bobby Sheldon were throwing well and Webb was making some sensational catches during the workout.

The punting drill was featured by the work of McHugh, who teams with Captain Charlie Sanders to give the Jackets a fine punting department.

ROUGH DRILL TODAY.
After spending about an hour on the field, the Jackets adjourned to the lecture room for blackboard instructions. The week's first rough work is schedule this afternoon.

At the insistence of railbirds at Tech practices and in justice to Bobby Sheldon, this correspondent wants to correct a statement in his story on the Tech-Kentucky game. It was not Sheldon who allowed Mullins to catch the touchdown pass as the half ended. Sheldon played a fine game, breaking up numerous Kentucky tosses.

World To Hear Armistice Talk By Roosevelt

Wallace, Stimson, Knox Open Drive for Red Cross Tonight.

By PAUL JONES.
President Roosevelt, speaking from the quiet of Arlington cemetery, today will address the world over the combined facilities of the major American radio networks, which will in turn short-wave his words to foreign points. The address will begin at about 11 o'clock. The program from the cemetery will go on the air at approximately 10:59 a. m., to allow for the one minute's pause in honor of the boys who died in France in the last World War. All Atlanta stations will carry this program.

Later in the day, other national figures will be heard in addresses which will be marked the official opening of Red Cross drive in America. Vice President Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox will lead a group of speakers and stars of the entertainment world. This program will be heard over WAGA and WGST, and will begin at 10 o'clock tonight.

4 Singers Bow on Symphony Hour

Four young American singers, one of them singing-writer in a New York night club, have been selected by Leopold Stokowski for soloist roles in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, to be played by the NBC Symphony orchestra tonight. The radio audience will hear only the choral finale of the symphony, to be heard over the NBC-Blue network and WAGA, from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

The four singers are, Anne Brown Negro soprano, who was the "Bess" in the original production of "Porgy and Bess"; Winifred Heidt, contralto, of radio and opera; William Horne, New York city-born tenor, who has sung with many leading symphony orchestras, and Lawrence Whisnant, 26-year-old Negro, now employed as singing-writer in the cafe of a New York hotel.

'We, the People' Show

Observes Armistice
A fighting sergeant of World War I, who chose the grave from which America's Unknown Soldier was brought back to his native soil.

The American undersecretary of agriculture, fresh from a long aerial survey of England's most dire food needs.

Son of the manager of that Ford's theater where President Lincoln was assassinated in 1865. Of such unusual guests does Director Eddie Dowling weave his "We, the People" tonight at 9 p. m. over WGST.

Points for Parents

By Edyth Thomas Wallace

Mother: "I'm glad you finally told me the truth, Bill. I know it took courage and I hope next time you'll have the courage to tell it right away. Think you can, Son?"

Not This

Mother: "I'm going to whip you for not telling me the truth at once."

Son (to himself): "Next time I won't tell her at all since I get a whipping anyway."

When a child's behavior is partly commendable and partly blameworthy, be sure and emphasize behavior you wish repeated.

Even railroad trains are slowing down these days to avoid killing deer. Officials of the Milwaukee road have instructed their engineers to reduce speed on an eight-mile stretch near Parks' siding on the Iron-Baraga county line in Michigan, where 15 deer have been killed this season.

The state police of Delaware contributed to the aluminum campaign. They virtually "hit the jackpot" when they broke open a number of confiscated slot machines, and salvaged about 40 pounds of aluminum.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Previous to noon, favors dealings with those in advanced or superior positions. If you are wanting to attain a material, social or professional triumph, see what you can do about it this morning. During the remainder of the day, more will be accomplished by acting with deliberation.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The morning hours and until 2:33 p. m. are likely to be filled with petty irritations. This is a time to use caution in travel, communications, in the making of contracts and anything that requires your signature. The remainder of the day and evening you will want to work at full speed, as much can be accomplished. You may encounter people who are overbearing. Try and sidetrack them.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The day through 8:45 p. m. favors energetic and aggressive efforts along business and industrial lines, for literary works and constructive efforts along new lines, and for real estate transactions. After 8:45 p. m. the period past 8:45 p. m. favors sociability, and romantic interests.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Before 5 p. m. favors dealings in affairs of a conservative nature and for real estate transactions. After 5 p. m. favors matters of a mechanical nature, dealings with the opposite sex.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—An especially favorable day for making friends with older and conservative people, for contacting those who are dependent and steadfast in the making of plans that have been in the mind for a long period, for real estate transactions, and for steadily applying yourself to business, political and personal affairs.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—You may find this a hard day when you may be called to give your strict attention to necessary tasks. This can be made a most favorable period.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—An excellent day for real estate transactions, dealings with relatives, industrial affairs and matters of a romantic nature. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:15 p. m.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The combined influences today supply inspiration that is favorable for financial interests, making personal decisions as well as general business activities. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3 p. m.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The morning hours and until 11:15 a. m. favors important plans, dealings with those in authority, buying, selling, trading and matters concerned with art. After 11:15 p. m. favors dealings with organizations and for working on affairs that have a systematic foundation.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Between 9:37 and 8 p. m. favors general business and professional activities, matters pertaining to law, religion, and philosophy. After 8 p. m. use care in driving and avoid quick turnarounds of temper.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The entire day is auspicious for dealing with loved ones, for literary effort, for making plans for the future. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 5:10 p. m. The day does not especially favor making sudden changes or for putting into practice radical ideas.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The entire day is auspicious for dealing with loved ones, for literary effort, for making plans for the future. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 5:10 p. m. The day does not especially favor making sudden changes or for putting into practice radical ideas.

Kate Hits Waste.

Kate Smith, recently appointed liaison officer between the Office of Emergency Management and the world of radio by the United States government, will wage a war on defense waste starting today at 12 noon, over the Columbia network and WGST. She will devote one spot per day to that cause for the remainder of the week.
